VERMILYEA GENEALOGY FIRST GENERATION

1

Johannes Vermelje<sup>1</sup>, (Immigrant), born in 1632 (baptized November 4, 1632) at Leyden, Holland, son of Isaac and Jacomina (Jacobs) Vermeille, married August 27, 1670 at New York Dutch Reformed Church, New York City, New York Aeltie, daughter of Resolved and Rebecca (Hendricks) Waldron who was born December __, 1651 (baptized at the New Church January 2, 1652) at Amsterdam, Holland, died at Lower Yonkers, New York in 1734. He died 1695/96 at Harlem, New York. The burial location of Johannes and Aeltie is not known. He was one of the original Patentees of Manhattan Island. (While certainly he was one of the Harlem patentees, Harlem is only a part of Manhattan Island, and there were no patentees of Manhattan as such.) Source Codes: #10, #149, #175, #404 and #725.

Johannes Vermilye's worth was recognized by an appointment to command a military company in 1663. He was born in 1632 at Leyden. Coming to New Amsterdam in ripe man hood and uniting in his character the sterling traits of the French and Dutch, he was made Court Messenger in 1665, and Constable in 1667, being for this year also farmer of the excise; previous to which he had set up a brewery. August 27, 1670, then holding the position of Magistrate, he married Aeltje, daughter of Resolved Waldron; when he probably built upon land procured some years before, but which is first taxed in 1671.

Mr. Vermilye took a leading part both in civil and church affairs. In the Political Crisis of 1689, he was chosen one of the committee of Safety, which on June eight of that year appointed Captain Jacob Leisler to be "Captain of the Fort" and on August sixteenth, signed his commission as "Commander in Chief" of the province. Taking a seat in Leiser's Council Dec. 11th, ensuing, he was sent soon after upon an embassy to New Haven. (Web Site for Jacob Leisler Papers Project -- <http://jacobleislerinstitute.org/the-jacob-leisler-papers/> or visit The Jacob Leisler Papers Project on Facebook)

He continued a member of the Council till a sudden end was put to Leisler's rule by the coming of Col. Slaughter, March 20, 1691, by whose orders Leisler and his council (Vermilye included) were "committed to the guards" on a charge of high treason. The execution of Leisler and Milbourne, but two months later, seemed to Vermilye and his fellow prisoners similar fate. But after a painful suspense of seventeen months they were liberated by Governor Fletcher, on his arrival, and were pardoned by the King February 20, 1693. Vermilye surviving this trying ordeal but a short period, as he was deceased in March 1696, his widow sold out his lands at Harlem in 1715 to her nephew, John Delamater, and died at Yonkers in 1734. The Vermelje and Waldron Families were members of the Harlem Reformed Dutch Church (also known as the Harlem Collegiate Reformed Church). Both Johannes and Resolved (Aeltie's father) served as Elders. In 1686, they were among the financial contributors and contract signers for construction of a stone church; referred to as the second church, a replacement for the first church, a plain rough, 2-storied, timbered structure built between 1665-1667. The corner-stones were set with considerable ceremony on March 29, 1668; the first stone being laid by Resolved Waldron and the second by Johannes Vermelje. The first service was held on September 30, 1686. During the Revolutionary War, the church was destroyed; the only surviving relic is its steeple bell, forged in Holland in 1734. See additional information on the history of the settlement of New Harlem and related articles in Source Code #374, Volume V, Number 2; Volume V, Number 1; Volume IV, Number 2; Volume III, Number 2; Volume II, Number 4 and Volume II, Number 2.

Without question, the single most important chapter in the life of Johannes Vermilyea was his active role in what historians call Leisler's Rebellion. Briefly, in the spring of 1689, when word had reached New York of England's "Glorious Revolution" (the forced ouster, in late 1688, of King James II by Parliament, and the ascension of William and Mary to the throne), Jacob Leisler, a merchant and captain of the New York militia, organized (or assumed the leadership of) what amounted to a coup d'etat. He forced New York's acting Royal Governor, Lieutenant Governor Francis Nicholson (appointed by James II), from power, and announced his intention to assume control of the colony until a new governor was named. On June 28, 1689, a Committee of Safety (of which Johannes Vermilyea was a member) named Leisler "Captain of the Fort" (i.e., Fort James, which controlled the entrance to New York harbor); on August 16, the Committee appointed him "Commander in Chief" of the province. Finally, in December, Leisler declared himself Lieutenant Governor, and formed a governor's council, again with Johannes Vermilyea as a member. For the next fifteen months, he and his council administered the colony, by all accounts honestly, which was an improvement over their predecessors. Leisler and his followers believed themselves to be acting in the interests of the new King William III and of the Protestant cause (the previous Governor, like James II, was a Roman Catholic), but when the new Royal Governor appointed by William, Colonel Henry Sloughter, finally arrived in March, 1691, he had Leisler and his closest supporters, Johannes Vermilyea among them, arrested on a charge of high treason. (Leisler had many powerful enemies, especially among New York's wealthy elites, and they worked tirelessly to bring about his downfall.) By early May, eight men, including Leisler, his son-in-law Jacob Milborne, and Johannes Vermilyea, had been tried, convicted, and sentenced to death. Leisler and Milborne were hanged on May 16; Johannes Vermilyea and the others lingered in prison for the next seventeen months, while supporters petitioned for their release. Finally, in the late summer of 1692, the new Royal Governor, Benjamin Fletcher (Governor Sloughter had died July 23, 1691) arrived in New York with instructions from the King to free them. They received an official Royal Pardon March 15, 1693/4 (i.e., 1694).

There can be little doubt that the seventeen months Johannes Vermilyea spent in prison (from late March 1691 to September 1692) adversely affected his health; according to Riker, he was living April 1, 1693, when he purchased two pieces of meadow at Kingsbridge (transferred on the same date to Bastiaen Michaels Kortright, who had married his niece, Jolante La Montagne), but was deceased (undoubtedly at Harlem) by March, 1696. There is no probate record, or division of property, on file for Johannes Vermilyea, either in New York or Harlem town records. His place of burial is unknown, but most likely in the Harlem Dutch Reformed Church churchyard. Provided by Source Code #725.

Abstract of Wills, Volume III 1730-1744: page 166: In the name of God, Amen, May 23, 1730. I Altie Vermillie, of Yonkers, in Westchester County, widow, being in health. I leave to my eldest son Abraham oe25, and one bed and furniture; "which said bed is my own proper lodging bed." I leave all the rest of my estate to my children, Abraham, Isaac, Johanes, Rebecca, wife of Peter Bussing, Rachel wife of Charles Vincent, Hannah, wife of Johannes Odell, and to the children of my daughter, Sarah, deceased, wife of Tunis Dolsen. I appoint my sons, Isaac and Johanes, and my son-in-law, Peter Bussing, executors. Witnesses, Charles Warner, Edward Smith, Roger Barton. Proved, April 23, 1734.

Aeltie Waldron, widow of Johannes Vermilyea, died at Lower Yonkers (probably near Kingsbridge) in 1734. Her will, dated at (Lower) Yonkers May 23, 1730, names her eldest son Abraham (who was to receive her bed, a good indication that he lived with or near her), followed by sons Isaac and Johannes, and daughters Rebecca, wife of Peter Bussing, Rachel, wife of Charles Vincent, Hannah, wife of Johannes Odell, and the children (not named) of her deceased daughter Sarah, wife of Teunis Dolsen. (It is clear that the daughter Mary, who had married Peter Kierse about 1715, was also deceased by this date, apparently without leaving children). She names as executors her sons Isaac and Johannes, and son-in-law Peter Bussing. (The fact that the eldest son Abraham was not named an executor, and the fact that he appears not to have married, suggests that he may have been incapacitated in some way.) The will was witnessed by Charles Warner, Edward Smith and Roger Barton, all residents of Lower Yonkers. (The granddaughter of Edward Smith, Mehitable Betts, would later marry Abraham Vermilyea, Aeltie's grandson; Roger Barton, who lived in the southeastern part of Lower Yonkers, would later sell his farm there to Johannes Vermilyea, Aeltie's son.) Aeltie probably died shortly before April 23, 1734, when the will was presented for probate. The place of her burial is unknown. If not buried next to her husband in Harlem, she may have been interred in the Dyckman-Nagel ground, which formerly existed near the northern end of Manhattan Island, along 10th Avenue between 212th and 214th streets. (This cemetery began as a private burying ground for the families of Jan Nagel and Jan Dyckman, who were the first and second husbands of Rebecca Waldron (born about 1649), Aeltie's sister. A fair number of Vermilyeas, all of whom had a direct connection to the Dyckman family, were buried there from the mid-18th to the late 19th centuries. The grounds were eventually taken over by New York City for a subway maintenance facility, and by 1927, the last of the remaining bodies had been removed to various cemeteries in Westchester County and Brookhaven, Long Island, a fact which appears to have confused some researchers.) #### Children:

- *2. Rebecca, baptized December 17, 1671.
- *3. Sarah, baptized October 4, 1673.
- *4. Rachel, baptized November 10, 1675.
- 5. Abraham, baptized December 19, 1677, died infant.
- 6. Abraham #2, born 1679 at New Harlem, New York, baptized January 24, 1680, unmarried. He died probably at Lower Yonkers after 1730.

He appears nowhere in any public records, and the fact that he was not asked, along with his brothers Isaac and Johannes, to be an executor to his mother's will suggests that he may have been incapacitated in some way. He died, most likely at Lower Yonkers, after 1730. Source Code #725.

Baptisms at the Reformed Dutch Church of New Amsterdam (1639-1730)

BAPTISMS OF 1680, January 24; Johannes Vermelje, Aeltie Waldron; Abraham; Barent Waldron, Ruthie Waldron. (First two names are parents, third name is person baptized, followed by witnesses. Source Code #180 visited the Westchester County Historical Society Archives and could not locate the Abraham Vermillie will that was abstracted by Pelletreau. He did come across his mother Altie's will. It was printed in a series published by The New York Historical Society before the turn of the last century, entitled Collection Wills. What is so interesting about the find is that Altie's will lists all of the children, and spouses of the daughters, witnesses and dates, as in Abraham's. It is obvious that Pelletreau made a mistake in his 1896 publication in attributing Altie's will to Abraham.

While several sources offer detailed lists of his descendants, of the seven children listed under Abraham, six were, in fact, children of his parents. The only child not identified is Jeremiah, who has never been documented and therefore believed to be nonexistent.

*7. Isaac, baptized April 1, 1682.

8. Maria, born in 1684 at Harlem, New York, baptized April 13, 1684, married Peter Kierse. Source Codes #40 and #725.

Maria Vermilyea, daughter of Johannes, married Peter Kierse. But since Peter Kierse, born about 1690, and would thus be six years younger than a wife born 1684, I think it is quite likely that this Maria died young, and that the Maria who married Peter Kierse was a second Maria, born 1691. Source Code #725.

9. Jacob, baptized at the New York Dutch Reformed Church November 24, 1686, died young. Source Code #40.

Baptism sponsors were Peter Van Oblinus (husband of Cornelia Waldron, and the child's maternal uncle-by-marriage) and Catherine Lievens (her relationship to the child, if any, is unknown). Jacob Vermilyea was deceased by the date of his mother's will (May 23, 1730), and probably by 1698, when he is not listed with the family in the census taken that year. Source Code #725.

*10. Johannes/John, born about 1688/89.

11. Maria, #2, born at New Harlem about 1691, and doubtless baptized at the Harlem Dutch Reformed Church, whose records for this period are missing. I base my argument for the existence of this second Maria on the fact that Peter Kierse, her husband, was born about 1690, and would almost certainly have been older than his wife, not six years younger. Peter Kierse, born at Fordham Manor about 1690, was the son of Hendrick Kierse and his wife Metje (i.e., Martha) Michaels. Given his age, he could not have married much before 1712, and most likely about 1715. On April 15, 1718, Peter Kierse and his wife Marytje Vermilyea were sponsors at the Tappan Dutch Reformed Church for the baptism of Hendrick Nagel, son of Barent Nagel and Sarah Kierse, Peter's sister. Peter Kierse lived at Fordham Manor where, on May 1, 1755, he was in debt to the Consistory of the New York Dutch Reformed Church (proprietors of the Manor) in the enormous sum of 81 pounds (Melick, The Manor of Fordham and its Founder p. 131). Maria Vermilyea, wife of Peter Kierse, was deceased by the date of her mother Aeltie Vermilyea's will (May 23, 1730), and apparently left no children. (Note: if there was no second Maria Vermilyea born 1691, this could be the birthdate of the daughter Hannah. Source Code #725.

*12. Hannah, born 1690 -1693.

BUSSING

Rebecca Vermilye<sup>2</sup>, (Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1671 at New Harlem, New York, baptized at the New York Dutch Reformed Church December 17, 1671, married June 7, 1700 at the New York Dutch Reformed Church Peter, son of Arent Harmansen and Susannah (Delamater) Bussing, who was born in 1674 and died in 1737 at Yonkers, New York. She died _____ (living in 1737). Source Codes: #10, #363, #640 and #725.

Sponsors at her baptism were with sponsors Isaac Vermilyea (the child's paternal grandfather) and Engeltie Stoutenburgh (wife of William Waldron, and the child's maternal aunt-by-marriage).

Following their marriage, Rebecca and Peter Bussing settled on a farm in Fordham Manor. This farm of 106 acres, which Peter was allowed to purchase in fee simple (i.e., not a leasehold), was bounded on the east by the Bronx River, and lay just a little south of the border with Lower Yonkers, placing it almost in the northeast corner of Fordham Manor. Rebecca and Peter Bussing remained on this farm until the death of Peter's father Arent in 1718, when they removed to Harlem, Peter settling on his father's lands after buying out the other heirs. His will, dated at Harlem "in the Out Ward of New York" February 19, 1733 (1733/34?), names his wife Rebecca, eldest son Aaron Bussing, who was to receive his lands at Harlem on the death of the widow, son Peter, who was to receive the farm at Fordham purchased from Edmund Ward and "Thomas" Dolsen (i.e., Teunis Dolsen, Peter Bussing's brother-in-law, who had married Sarah Vermilyea), son Abraham, who was to receive a farm at Fordham purchased from Thomas Davenport (this farm lay a bit to the south of the other Fordham farm), daughter Aeltie, wife of Jacob Meyer, daughter Susanna (clearly unmarried at the time), and his three grandsons Evert, Peter and John Bussing, sons of his son John, deceased. He named his wife Rebecca and sons Aaron and Peter executors. The will was witnessed by Peter Van Oblinus, Abraham Meyer (Peter Bussing's brother-in-law, who had married Peter's half-sister Engeltie Bussing), and Roger Barton (who also witnessed the will of Aeltie Vermilyea in 1730). Peter Bussing died at Harlem shortly before July 27, 1737, when his will was presented for probate. His widow Rebecca was still living April 4, 1743 (Westchester County Deeds, Liber H, p. 3); her date and place of death have not been discovered. She and Peter Bussing were most likely buried in the Dutch Reformed Church churchyard at Harlem.

Abstract of Wills, Volume III 1730-1744: page 85: In the name of God, Amen. I, Peter Bussing, of Harlem, in the outward of New York. I leave to my wife Rebecca the sole use of all my estate, while she remains unmarried. After her death or marriage, all my houses, lands, and tenements in Harlem are left to my eldest son, Aaron Bussing, with 1/3 of the livestock, and he is to pay oe40. I leave to my son Peter all that farm or plantation in the Manor of Fordham which I purchased of Edmund Ward and Thomas Dollsen, and the meadow at Yonkers, with all rights to the same. Also, all the utensils of husbandry; and he is to pay oe250. I leave to my son Abraham all that farm or plantation in the Manor of Fordham, which I purchased of Thomas Davenport, and the meadow at Westchester, with all the privileges, and utensils of husbandry are to be purchased for him out of my estate. The monies which are to be paid by my said sons, and the monies due to me on bond, I leave to my daughter Altie, wife of Jacob Myer, and to my daughter Susanah, and to my three grand-sons, Evert, Peter, and John, sons of my son John deceased. My son Aaron is to have oe5 for his claim as heir-at-law, and I appoint my wife and my sons Aaron and Peter executors. Dated February 19, 1733. Witnesses, Peter Van Oblinus, Abraham Myer, Roger Barton. Proved, July 27, 1737.

Children:

- I. Aaron, born December 27, 1700 at New Harlem, New York, baptized as Arent at the New York Dutch Reformed Church January 29, 1701 (sponsors Arent Bussing (the child's paternal grandfather) and Aeltie Vermilyea (i.e., Aeltie Waldron, widow of Johannes Vermilyea, and the child's maternal grandmother). Aaron married October 21, 1730 at New Harlem, New York Maria, daughter of Johannes and Catherine (Dolsen) Meyer, baptized May 6, 1711 at the Dutch Reformed Church, New York, died _____. He died 1784 at Harlem, New York. They had seven children.
Aaron Bussing inherited his father's lands at Harlem, and died there in 1784 (Riker).
- II. Johannes, born January 20, 1703 at Fordham Manor, New York, married June 15, 1725 at the Dutch Reformed Church, New York Marytie, daughter of Evert and Mary (Devoe) de Bruyn (Brown) who was born in 1705 at Fordham Manor. Johannes Bussing lived at Fordham Manor, where he was a carpenter. He died there shortly before April 7, 1732, when Letters of Administration on his estate were issued to the widow, Mary (Brown) Bussing. She married second (1734/35), as his second wife, Johannes/John Vermilyea, uncle of her late husband Johannes Bussing.
- III. Peter, born January 4, 1705 at Fordham Manor, New York, married Helena, daughter of Samson and Maria (Meyer) Benson who was born November 5, 1716 at Harlem, New York, died _____. He died October 20, 1782 at Fordham Manor, New York on the land his father left him in his will. They had four children.
- IV. Aeltie, born January 20, 1707 at Fordham Manor, New York, married in 1730 probably at New Harlem, New York Jacob, (brother of her brother Aaron's wife Maria) son of Johannes and Catherine (Dolsen) Meyer who was baptized at the Dutch Reformed Church, New York May 8, 1709, died November 25, 1758 at New Harlem, New York. She died 1765 at New Harlem, New York. Children: (1) Susanna Meyer, born in 1737 married in 1756 Isaac Vermilyea son of John Vermilyea Jr. and Gerritie Dyckman; many Vermilyea women of later generations were named for her. (2) Unknown.
- V. Abraham, born May 31, 1710 at Fordham Manor, New York, was living at the time of his father's will in 1733, could have died soon after as there is no further record of him.
- VI. Susanna, born May 10, 1714 at Fordham Manor, New York, married in 1735 probably at Harlem, New York Benjamin, (his sister Helena married Susanna's brother Peter) son of Samson and Maria (Meyer) Benson who was born October 3, 1705 at New Harlem, New York, died about 1792. She died _____. They had six children.

DOLSEN

Sarah Vermilyea<sup>2</sup>, (Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1673 at New Harlem, New York, baptized October 4, 1673 at New York Dutch Reformed Church, New York, married September __, 1696 Teunis son of Jan Gerritsen and Gerritje (Margaret) (Cray/Crey) Dolsen who was born September 5, 1664 at New York City, New York, died August 30, 1766 at Dolsontown, Goshen, Orange County New York at 101 years old. Source Codes: #10, #62, #143, #480 and #725.

According to several newspaper accounts of his death, said to be the first child born in New York City following its takeover by the English, when the name was changed from New Amsterdam to New York.

Following their marriage, Sarah and Teunis Dolsen settled at Harlem, where Teunis was named a constable September 29, 1697 (Riker p. 791); they were still there in September 1698, when Teunis is recorded as a freeman of New York City (Harlem was considered a part of the city's Out Ward); by July 1699, they had removed to Eastchester, Westchester County, where Teunis was living when he signed the Oath of Allegiance to King William III that year; in 1701, Teunis sold his land at Eastchester and, in partnership with his brother-in-law Peter Bussing (who had married Sarah's sister Rebecca Vermilyea), purchased land in the northeastern part of Fordham Manor. On May 1, 1704, Teunis Dolsen was named an assessor for the town of Westchester (which included Fordham Manor). A few years later, he probably moved a short distance north into Lower Yonkers, where his brothers-in-law Isaac Vermilyea and Charles Vincent Jr. (Vincent had married Sarah's sister Rachel Vermilyea) were living, and which Isaac Dolsen (born 1707), son of Teunis, gave as his birthplace when he married in 1733. By 1713, Teunis was apparently living in Eastchester and/or the part of Westchester town just east of the Bronx River, as he bought and sold land in those places that year and in the next few years following. From January 1719 (January 1718/19) through January 1721 (January 1720/21), he is recorded a vestryman of St. Peter's Parish, Church of England, which embraced the towns of Westchester, Eastchester, New Rochelle, Yonkers, Pelham and Morrisania. By the middle of 1721, Teunis Dolsen had removed to the town of Mamaroneck, Westchester County, where he most likely remained until 1727. That year, probably with the encouragement of Mary Ter Bos (born 1672), his wife Sarah's first cousin, and wife of James Hussey, a wealthy farmer of the South Ward, Dutchess County (later Rombout Precinct, today the town of Fishkill, Dutchess), Teunis removed north to settle in the Fishkill area. (There is every reason to believe that these two cousins knew each other well; they were virtually the same age (Mary Ter Bos was born 1672, Sarah Vermilyea 1673), and Rachel Vermilyea, Mary's mother, was the godmother of Sarah, an important relationship in Dutch culture. A few years later, Mary's daughter Mary Hussey would marry Sarah's son Isaac Dolsen.) Source Code #725.

Teunis, son of Captain and Gerritee (Kray, also known as Grey) Dolson, who was born in 1664 in New Harlem is credited with being the first male child born after Manhattan was ceded to the English by the Dutch. (Note: This indicates he was born in September or October of 1664.) He married Sara Vermilye, daughter of John Vermilye, in New Amsterdam (New York) in 1696 and later lived in Westchester County and advancing to different localities up the Hudson River, finally locating in and about Goshen, New York, where is established the town of Dolsontown. He resided here until his death, 30 August 1766, at the age of one hundred and two years. The Dolsons of Orange County, New York, are his descendants. Some of his children were baptized at Poughkeepsie and others at Fishkill. The first house at Dolsontown was a log house loop holed for musketry and this was followed by a stone house which was used as a fortification as well as the block house when the Indians were troublesome and during the French and Indian War of 1756. Source Code #482, page 59.

New York Mercury September 15, 1766: "Tunis Dolson, first male born in New York City after it was ceded to the English by the Dutch---died Aug. 30 at Goshen, New York, in his 102nd year." The fact that he died at "Goshen" indicates that he was then living either with his son Isaac (at present-day Wawayanda) or with his son Abraham (at present-day Warwick), since both Wawayanda and Warwick were then part of Goshen Precinct. He was quite likely buried either in the present-day Pine Hill Cemetery, located in the town of Wawayanda just south of Middletown, which began as a burial ground for the family of his son Isaac (see below), or in the grounds of the Old School Baptist Church at Warwick. Source Code #725.

Children: (Source Code #725)

- I. Child, born at New Harlem (present-day Harlem, New York City) about 1697. This is probably a daughter Grietje (Margaret), named for her paternal grandmother Grietje, daughter of Theunis Crey and wife of Jan Gerritsen Dolsen. While no such child appears later in Dutchess County records, it must be recalled that her parents did not remove there until 1727, when she would have been 29 or 30, meaning that she would almost certainly have married while still in the lower Westchester area, and likely remained there. The fact there was such a daughter is based on the fact that Teunis and Sarah later had a daughter Johanna, something they would not likely have done without first having a daughter Grietje. Note also that both Isaac and Abraham Dolsen, sons of Teunis, had daughters named Grietje, normally an indication that they had a sister by that name.
- II. Aeltie, baptized July 16, 1699 in Westchester County, New York, married December 3, 1738 at Fishkill, New York Dirck, son of Adrian and Elizabeth (Van Wyck) Hegeman who was born in 1714 at Flatbush, Kings County (Brooklyn) New York. No children.
Dirck Hegeman is found on tax lists for Rombout Precinct from 1739 through 1768. In 1759, Dirck Hegeman, blacksmith, purchased 108 acres in what is now East Fishkill, on which he built the first part of the Storm-Adriance-Brinckerhoff house (later called "Plenty Acres"), which is still standing today.
- III. Johannes, born 1702 probably at Fordham Manor, married about 1729 Elizabeth, daughter of Johannes and Marytie (Brouwer) Buys who was born at Fishkill, New York, was baptized at the Dutch Reformed Church, Tarrytown, New York June 1, 1708, died _____. He died _____. Children: (1) Tunis, born about 1730, married first about 1751 Rachel (last name unknown, but possibly a Cronkhite), second Mary Cross. Teunis Dolsen is on tax lists for Poughkeepsie from February 1757 to June 1760, and may also have lived in the nearby Marlborough and Newburgh areas. By the time of the Revolution, he was living in Northampton County, Pennsylvania. In 1788, he settled at Big Flats, present-day Tioga County, New York, where he died 1799; (2) Maria, baptized at Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church April 2, 1732 (Fishkill baptism #17), married Ananias Valentine, and lived mostly at Marlborough; (3) Johannes, born 1734, baptized at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church April 5, 1735, married about 1762, Elizabeth Simpson; (4) Jacob, born November 2, 1736, married March 23, 1763 Mary Cook; (5) Isaac, baptized May 26, 1739 at the Poughkeepsie Dutch Reformed Church, married about 1770 Mary Field. This Isaac Dolsen was the Loyalist from Pennsylvania who served with Butler's Rangers; he was at Niagara with his father Johannes Dolsen in 1783, and later, with his brother Matthew, at Detroit and Ontario, where he died in 1812. Note: in the Loyalist provisioning list of December 1783, Isaac gives his age as 41 (i.e., born 1742), which is four years off. While this could mean that the Isaac born in 1738 died young, and this Isaac was a younger brother born in 1742, I consider that unlikely. Source Code #725; (6) Abraham, baptized May 27, 1741 at the Poughkeepsie Dutch Reformed Church; (7) Sarah, born about 1742, could have married James Knapp of Marlborough, a Loyalist who went to Canada after the Revolution; (8) Samuel, baptized September 2, 1744 at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church; (9) Catherine, born about 1746, married first about 1763 Peter Andrew Lossing, married second April 12, 1795 at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church (Fishkill marriages #300) Nazareth Brewer. Lived at Poughkeepsie. Baptismal sponsorships make it absolutely clear that the wife of Peter Andrew Lossing was Catherine, daughter of Johannes Dolsen, and about this there is no dispute; (10) Child, born about 1748 (1747?). This could either be the daughter Elizabeth (named for her mother), who is said to have married Lewis Sniffen/Kniffen (Doherty), or the son Peter (See #12). (11) Matthew, born about 1750, married Hannah Field, younger sister of Mary Field, who married his brother Isaac Dolsen. During the Revolution, Matthew Dolsen lived in the Wyoming Valley of Pennsylvania, where he was a firm Loyalist and soldier with Butler's Rangers. At the end of the war, he settled close to his brother Isaac, also a Ranger, first at Detroit and later along the Lower Thames River in Ontario; (12) Child, born about 1752 (1751?). This could either be the son Peter (named for his maternal uncle Peter Buys), a Loyalist who was killed near Blooming Grove, Orange County, New York April __, 1778 (George Clinton Papers 1253), or the daughter Elizabeth, (See #10).

Johannes Dolsen registered his earmark in Dutchess County June 21, 1729; on April 6, 1731, he was named one of the "Surveyors of the Common Ways" for the South Ward of Dutchess. He appears on the annual tax lists for the South Ward from February 1730 (1729/30) through February 1735 (1734/35). In 1735, he removed from the Fishkill area to the Oswego section of the Beekman Patent (present-day Union Vale), where he was one of the earliest settlers, and where he appears on tax lists from 1736 through June 1748 (lists for the years 1749-1752 are missing). While in Beekman, he was a Lieutenant, and later Captain, in the colonial militia. In May of 1751 Johannes Dolsen, then about 48, sold his leased farm in Beekman to Nathaniel Yeomans, and moved across the Hudson River to Marlborough in Ulster County, where he resided until about 1756. From February 1757 through June 1763 (perhaps not coincidentally, the period of the French and Indian War), tax lists show him living at Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County (lists for 1764 were not recorded); he was still there in October 1765, when he was a sponsor for the baptism of a grandchild at the New Hackensack Dutch Reformed Church. Sometime after this, and certainly by 1771, Johannes Dolsen, now in his middle to late 60s, removed with some of his children to Sunbury Manor in the Wyoming Valley of Pennsylvania. During the Revolution, two of the sons, Isaac and Matthew, were active Loyalists and members of Butlers Rangers; at the end of the war, Johannes Dolsen, by then a widower, accompanied the Rangers to Niagara, where he appears on a Loyalist provisioning list dated December 1, 1783. His age is given as 81, which is the closest thing we have to a record of his birth. Johannes Dolsen almost certainly accompanied his son Isaac when he removed from Niagara to the Detroit area in 1784. Source Code #725.

- IV. Jacob, born in 1704/05 in Westchester County, New York, married January 12, 1734/35 at Fishkill, New York, Maritje/Maria, daughter of Pieter Buys who was born at Fishkill, New York, baptized March 25, 1712 at the Dutch Reformed Church at Tarrytown, New York, died in 1783, buried at Marlborough, New York September 22, 1783. He died in 1775 at Marlboro, Orange County, New York of smallpox, buried at Marlborough May 23, 1775. Children: (1) Teunis II, baptized October 6, 1735 at Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church. No record of marriage for this Teunis Dolsen who according to Source Code #725 has been confused with another man named Van Dalsen. He signed the Association at Newburgh in 1775, and is without question the Theunis Dolsen of Pawling's Regiment who, in a muster roll dated 1776, is described as age 41, a cordwainer born in Dutchess County. No further information. (2) Johannes, baptized May 15, 1737 at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church. According to Doherty, he is the Johannes Dolsen who married (as his 2nd wife), June 8, 1780 at the New Windsor Presbyterian Church Sarah Cosman, lived at Marlborough and Newburgh, and died there 1794; (3) Isaac, baptized May 26, 1739 at the Poughkeepsie Dutch Reformed Church; (4) Child, probably a daughter born about 1741; (5) Child, born about 1743, probably a daughter; (6) Aeltie, baptized April 28, 1745 at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church; (7) Matthew, born about 1747, no baptism found. He removed to the Warwick area of Orange County, where on February 26, 1776, he was appointed Ensign in the Pond Company of Goshen militia. Two years later (March 19, 1778), he was involved with his cousin Matthew Dolsen, son of Johannes, in breaking Peter Dolsen (most likely his cousin, but possibly a brother) and Daniel Field out of the Goshen jail. This is apparently the crime for which he was sentenced to hang, although he was later granted a reprieve by Governor Clinton. In January 1779, according to a letter written on his behalf by Isaac Nicoll (Sheriff of Orange County and previously Matthew Dolsen's commanding officer in the militia), he had a wife and one child. No further information; (8) Jacob, born about 1749, no further information.

Jacob first appears on tax lists for the South Ward in February 1730 (1729/30), significantly, five years before his marriage, further indication that he (along with his brothers) had assumed control of his father's property. He appears on tax lists for the South Ward continuously from February 1730 through February (1735/36); in the latter year, he followed his brother Johannes out to the Oswego section of the Beekman Patent (present-day Union Vale). He then appears on tax lists for the Middle Ward and Beekman from February 1737 (1736/37) through June 1748 (no lists for 1749-1752). While in Beekman, Jacob Dolsen was a Justice of the Peace, taking the oath of office 16 January 1739. He left the Oswego area about 1751, about the same time as his brother Johannes, and settled across the Hudson at Marlborough, Ulster County.

- V. Isaac, born March 24/25, 1707 at Yonkers, New York, married first April 23, 1733 at Fishkill, New York Marytje/Polly daughter of James and Marytje (Ter Bos) Hussey. (Isaac Dolsen and Mary Hussey were second cousins, the grandfather of Isaac (Johannes Vermilyea) and the grandmother of Mary (Rachel Vermilyea) being brother and sister) who was born at Fishkill, New York, baptized at the Tarrytown Dutch Reformed Church, died sometime after 1750. Children with Marytje Hussey: (1) James, born February 1, 1734, married about 1758 Phoebe Mecker and died at Goshen, Orange County, New York in 1778; (2) Sarah, born August 20, 1735, probably the unnamed child of Isaac and Mary Hussey baptized at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church October 6, 1735. Sarah is not mentioned in her father's will, and probably died unmarried; (3) Child, born about 1737, probably a son Teunis, no further record, probably died young; (4) Mary, born December 12, 1738. Not mentioned in her father's will, and probably died unmarried. (5) Abraham, baptized October 4, 1741 at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church It is most likely the Abraham Dolsen Jr. who was at Warwick, Orange County in the early 1770s and who, on September 14, 1775, was named Lieutenant in the Pond Company of the Goshen militia. On February 26, 1776 (and calling himself Abraham, evidence that his uncle Abraham was now deceased) he was promoted to Captain, but in December of the same year, was convicted in a Court Martial of stealing another soldier's blanket and removed from the service. At the same time, however, I am absolutely certain that he is not the Abraham Dolsen of Warwick who married about 1771 Phebe Benedict, as that Abraham Dolsen is listed in the 1790 census of Warwick as Abraham Dolsen Jr. Source Code #725; (6) Isaac, born November 27, 1743. He is described in his father's will as non compos mentis, and is said never to have married. The fact that he lived with his father, and that the will makes no mention of or provision for any children, seems to support the notion that he left no family. He died at Minisink shortly before August 12, 1799, when Letters of Administration were issued on his estate. Unmarried. (7) Margaret, born February 23, 1745 (1744/45) (Dolson 2012) Note: Source Code #725: I am fairly certain that the year of birth as given is incorrect, and should be 1746. A birthdate of February 1745 would be barely 15 months after the birth of Isaac, an astonishingly short interval for this period, unless the Isaac born 1743 died, and the Isaac mentioned in the will was a later child, born about 1747. She married James Gardner, who is said (Dolson 2012) to have died in Danby, Tompkins County in 1829; (8) Child, born about 1748; (9) Aeltje, born May 14, 1750, baptized August 25, 1750 at the Rombout Presbyterian Church, married Abraham Harding. She died in 1802 at present day Deer Park, Orange County, New York.

Isaac married second Sarah _____, who was born about 1722, died at Dolsentown, New York March 14, 1802, according to the gravestone, aged 79 years (i.e., born about 1722). Isaac died May 20, 1794 at Dolsentown, then part of Minisink (present-day Wawayanda), Orange County, burial in what became the Pine Hill Cemetery, Wawayanda, New York.

On April 1, 1729, along with Arie Delong and Francis Drake, Isaac Dolsen was elected an "Overseer of ye common highways" for the South Ward of Dutchess County; some weeks later, June 21, 1729, he recorded his earmark. (Both these records make clear that he was 21 years old at the time.)

Following their marriage, Isaac and Marytje remained in the South Ward/Rombout Precinct area (their farm was along the Sprout Creek in present-day East Fishkill), where Isaac was a millwright, and where he appears on tax lists from 1736 (1735/36) through 1748 (no lists 1749-1752). He was still there on August 25, 1750, when his wife Mary baptized a daughter at the Rombout Presbyterian Church, but by 1753 had apparently left Dutchess County. (The tax list for 1753 includes "Isaac Dolsen's farm.")

Following his removal from Dutchess, Isaac Dolsen went to Orange County, where in 1756 he purchased a large tract of 700 acres in the Wawayanda Patent. (His farm, situated just south of what is today Middletown, was probably considered at the time part of Goshen; since 1849, the area has been in the town of Wawayanda.) There he built a blockhouse as protection against the Indians, and the area surrounding it became known as "Dolsentown." Mary Ter Bos, first wife of Isaac Dolsen, died sometime after 1750, and Isaac married (2nd), most likely in Orange County, Sarah (born about 1722). Sarah's last name is unknown, but in her will dated October 25, 1797, she refers to her "niece Sarah Mills, wife of Peter Mills" (maiden name Foster), which could provide a clue to her identity. The date of Isaac's second marriage is not recorded, but certainly it took place before 1766, when Sarah Dolsen is recorded as a member of the Old School Baptist Church of Warwick, Orange County. Isaac Dolsen is listed in the 1790 census of Minisink, Orange County with a household of two males over 16 (Isaac himself, and most likely his unmarried son Isaac Jr.), one male under 16 (unidentified) and three females. Directly next door is his son-in-law, Abraham Harding. It is quite unusual to see a man of Isaac's age (83) listed as head of a family, but his wife was considerably younger (about 68), and his son Isaac Jr. was apparently non compos mentis; in any case, the fact that he was called Isaac and not Isaac Jr. is itself proof that the man listed here is Isaac (born 1707) and not a younger man. Isaac Dolsen died at Dolsentown, then part of Minisink (present-day Wawayanda), Orange County May 20, 1794, and was buried in what became the Pine Hill Cemetery, Wawayanda, New York. His will, dated May 2, 1794, was proved May 26, 1794. Sarah Dolsen, widow of Isaac, died at Dolsentown March 14, 1802, according to the gravestone, aged 79 years (i.e., born about 1722).

- VI. Abraham, born about 1710 in Westchester County, New York, married November 10, 1734 at the Dutch Reformed Church, Fishkill, New York Marytjen, daughter of Jonas and Jannetje (Ostrum) Slot who was baptized February 2, 1714 at the Dutch Reformed Church, Kingston, New York, born Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, New York He probably died at Goshen (present-day Warwick), Orange County, about 1774. His place of burial is unknown, but may have been in the grounds of the Old School Baptist Church at Warwick. She died _____. Children: (1) Child, born about 1735, probably a daughter named Sarah; (2) Jonas, baptized at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church May 15, 1737. No further information; (3) Jannetjen, baptized May 26, 1739 at the Poughkeepsie Dutch Reformed Church. She almost certainly died as an infant, since the sponsors at her baptism (Hendrick Phillips and Marytje Ostrum) were later sponsors for the baptism of her sister Marytje, and it would be very unusual for the same couple to be sponsors for two different children of the same parents, unless the first died; (4) Margaret, baptized September 9, 1740 at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church. She is mentioned, along with her parents, in a deed dated September 22, 1747, probably because she was one of the names on a lease for three lives. (In the colonial period, a lease for three lives was a lease whereby the rent remained unchanged during the lifetime of three individuals named in the lease; when the last of the three named died, the terms of the lease could be renegotiated.) No further information; (5) Aeltje, baptized April 1, 1743 at the Poughkeepsie Dutch Reformed Church. No further information; (6) Marytje, baptized April 28, 1745 at the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church. No further information; (7) Child, born about 1747, perhaps a son Teunis, no further information; (8) Abraham, born about 1749, married about 1771 at Warwick, New York Phebe Benedict who was born about 1753. He went with his family to the Florida section of Warwick, Orange County, where, as the second-oldest Abraham Dolsen (that is, following his father's death), he was known as Abraham Dolsen Jr. Abraham Dolsen died at Warwick shortly before January 10, 1803, when his will was presented for probate.

Abraham Dolsen was taxed in the South Ward February 1735 (1734/35), and later that year removed with his brother Johannes to the Oswego section of the Beekman Patent (present-day Union Vale), where he took up a lease farm just south of Verbank. He appears on tax lists for the Middle Ward and Beekman from February (1735/36) through June 1753 (no lists 1749-1752), after which he left Dutchess for the Warwick area of Orange County, not too far from his brother Isaac. He is surely the man recorded in the ledgers of the Baird store at Warwick 1773/74 as "Abraham Sr. and his daughter," since no other Abraham Dolsen could have had a child at this date old enough to trade at a store; (9) Isaac, born about 1751. He served, alongside his brother Abraham Dolsen Jr., with the Florida Company of the Orange County militia in the Revolution. The 1790 census of Warwick lists him next door to his cousin Abraham Dolsen on one side, and his brother Abraham Dolsen Jr. on the other. Isaac's household of one male over 16 (Isaac himself), three males under 16, and four females, suggests a man married about 1778, and born 1756 or earlier. Since neither Abraham nor Abraham Jr. would be old enough to be this Isaac's father, I conclude that he is the brother of one of these two men. And since Isaac Dolsen, brother of Abraham (and son of Isaac born 1707) was living in Minisink at the time with his father (unmarried and non compos mentis), I conclude that this Isaac is the brother of Abraham Jr., and son of Abraham. I have no information on his spouse or children; he may be the Isaac Dolsen who married Elizabeth (last name unknown) and sold land at Warwick in 1797. Source Code #725.

- VII. Johanna, born about 1712 in Westchester County, New York married about 1733 probably at Fishkill, Nicholas Delong who was born at Kingston, Ulster County, New York, baptized at the Kingston Dutch Reformed Church August 10, 1711, son of Frans and Maritje (Van Schaick) Delong (Kingston baptism #1971). Following their marriage, Nicholas and Johanna settled (1741) on a lease farm in present-day Lagrange, Dutchess County, later (1745) taking up a farm near present-day Beekmanville. Nicholas Delong appears on tax lists for the Middle Ward and Beekman from February 1734 (1733/34) through 1747. Sometime after that, he appears to have gone to Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, where he was living in 1750. Death records either for Nicholas Delong or his wife Johanna Dolsen have not been located.
- VIII. Sarah (possible), born about 1715 in Westchester County, New York. She may be the Sarah Doljen (sic) who with her husband Israel Rotsiker, baptized a son Daniel at the Montgomery (Orange County) Dutch Reformed Church May 25, 1736. No other records located for this couple anywhere in New York state, which makes it difficult to confirm that she belongs in this family. It is possible that they went to Pennsylvania, where other children of Teunis Dolsen are known to have gone. Source Code #725.

VINCENT

Rachel Vermilyea<sup>2</sup>, (Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1675 at New Harlem, New York, baptized November 10, 1675 at the New York Dutch Reformed Church, married about 1705 Charles, Jr., son of Charles and Elizabeth (Dix) Vincent who was born about 1675 at Lower Yonkers, New York, his will dated April 4, 1740, proved May 13, 1740 at Lower Yonkers, New York. Her will dated March 3, 1742, proved May 30, 1744. Source Codes: #10, #64, #573 and #725.

Following their marriage, Rachel and Charles Vincent Jr. settled on his father's lands at Lower Yonkers, which lay in what is today Van Cortlandt Park in the Bronx, close by Exit 23 of the Henry Hudson Parkway. The Vincents were Anglican, and attended church services at St. Peter's in Westchester; in 1707, Charles Vincent Jr. of Yonkers was a member of the Parish Vestry. The will of Charles Vincent Sr. (his father having died, Charles "Jr." was now Charles "Sr."), farmer of Yonkers, was dated April 4, 1740. It names his sons Charles and John (the two sons are mentioned three times in the will, with Charles each time named first, a sure sign that Charles was older than John), his wife Rachel, and states that his "two daughters Rachel and Mary," having received their part of the estate, are to be given one shilling each. (The two unmarried daughters, Sarah and Hannah, are not mentioned, which is very unusual.) He names his wife and sons Charles and John executors; the will was witnessed by John Ryder, Jacob Archer (not John Archer, as the New York Historical Society abstract inaccurately states; see below) and John Cuer, and proved May 13, 1740, indicating that Charles Vincent died shortly before that date. The will of Rachel Vincent, widow of Yonkers, was dated April 3, 1742. It mentions her two sons Charles and John (in that order, just as her husband's will did, leaving no doubt that Charles was the elder), her granddaughter Mary Bertine, a minor under 21 (daughter of her deceased daughter Mary), and her three daughters Rachel, wife of Stephen Williams, Sarah, wife of Benjamin Fowler, and Hannah Vincent. She names her brother Isaac Vermilyea (not Isaac Underhill, as the N-YHS abstract inaccurately states; see below) and friend William Forster executors; the will was witnessed by Jacob Ryder, James Fowler and Joseph Vail, and proved May 30, 1744, indicating that Rachel died about May 1744. Her precise date of death, and place of burial, are unknown. Source Code #725.

Children:

- I. Rachel, born most likely in 1707, and named for her mother. She married, probably at Lower Yonkers or Westchester, Westchester County (both present-day Bronx), in 1733, Stephen, son of John and Abigail Hubbard (Hobart) Williams who was born in 1703 near Williamsbridge, Town of Westchester, died July __, 1749 at Westchester. Rachel was still living as his widow in 1774, when she was mentioned in the will of her son Gilbert Williams. Her date of death is unknown, but she and her husband are probably buried at St. Peter's, Westchester, where the Williams had a family plot. Source Code #725. Children: (1) Stephen, born 1734, living in 1749, no further record; (2) Anna, born about 1737, died June __, 1772 at New Rochelle, New York; (3) Gilbert, born about 1739, married first September 19, 1764 Sarah Williams (his first cousin, daughter of his uncle

Daniel Williams and Mary (Searing) Williams. He married second January 15, 1773 Euphemia, daughter of Israel and Jemina (Pinckney) Honeywell who was born September 8, 1748, the widow of Elvin Hunt. During the Revolution, Gilbert Williams was a Loyalist, serving as Quartermaster for the Westchester Chasseurs. Gilbert died at Westchester in 1784, and his widow married (3rd) about 1786 Edward Briggs. Child: (a) Morris. (4) Frederick, born 1742 in Westchester County, New York, married in 1764 Eleanor Hunt who was born September 11, 1749 at Eastchester, New York. Frederick Williams lived at Westchester; during the Revolution, he was a very active (and notorious) Loyalist, and served with distinction as a Captain of Delancey's Corps under Major Mansfield Bearmore. At the close of the war, his estate was confiscated, and in 1783 he removed with other Loyalists to Digby, Digby County, Nova Scotia, where he was a prominent figure, and where he died February 21, 1828 (buried February 23rd), age 86 (sic, probably 85). Following his death, the widow returned to the United States, and lived in New York City with her son John. She died at New York City, according to her gravestone, October 13, 1834, and was buried at St. Peter's, Westchester. Children: (a) Rachel, born 1765. (b) Stephen, born 1767; (c) Tamer, born 1769; (d) Benjamin, born April 27, 1771; (e) Child, (could be Eleanor), born in 1773 at Digby, Nova Scotia; (f) John, born May 17/18, 1775; (g) Ann/Anna, born 1777. Source Code #725. (5) Child, born 1745 which is probably Sarah, born in Westchester County, New York, married about 1764 in Westchester County, New York John, son of Jacob and Santje (Susan) (Vermilyea); (6) Child, born about 1847.

- II. Charles III., born 1709 at Yonkers, Westchester County, New York, married in 1732 probably at Eastchester, Westchester County, New York Esther, daughter of Louis and Dinah (DeVoe) Guion who was born in 1715 at Eastchester, New York. Children: (1) Lewis, born _____, married Abigail Fowler. Children: (a) Elijah, born December 24, 1759, married Abigail Bayeux, died 1835; (b) Gilbert, born _____, married _____ Bayeaux; (c) Charles IV, born _____, married Hannah Burling. Source Code #573. He was a resident of Eastchester, New York. Children from Source Code #10.

In 1763, as "Charles Vincent, blacksmith," he was recorded a freeholder of Eastchester. No date of death or burial for either Charles Vincent or his wife, but they certainly in both spent their last days at Eastchester. Source Code #725.

- III. John, born in 1711 at Lower Yonkers, New York Colony, married December 1, 1733 at Tarrytown Dutch Reformed Church Abigail, daughter of Jacob and Abigail (Ferguson) Wiltsie who was born in 1715 at Phillips Manor, New York, baptized at the Tarrytown Dutch Reformed Church April 18, 1716 (Tarrytown baptism #319). He was dead by 1774, when the will of his nephew Gilbert Williams refers to the children of "my uncle John Vincent, deceased." No death information for his wife. Children: (1) Charles, born 1734; (2) Jacob, born 1737; (3) Mary, born 1743, married Joshua Odell; (4) John, born _____, married Mary Lawrence who was born September 08, 1750. Children: (a) John, born 1769; (b) Isaac; (c) Hannah; (d) Charity, born December 25, 1773; (e) Abigail; (f) Stephen.
- IV. Mary, born in 1713, married in 1739 in Westchester County, New York John, son of Peter and Anne (Borron) Bartine who was born April 15, 1712 at New Rochelle, New York. They resided at New Rochelle, where Mary died shortly after May 31, 1741, when the couple baptized their daughter at the French Church there. John Bartine married (2nd), probably at New Rochelle in 1741 Dorcas (last name unknown). He later removed to Yonkers, where he died (according to Mackenzie) August 26, 1815, aged 103. Child with Mary Vincent: (1) Mary, born January 22, 1741, baptized in the French Church, New Rochelle, New York May 31, 1741. She was mentioned in the will of her grandmother Rachel Vincent dated April 3, 1742. She married in 1759 Johannes Van Tassel, and died, according to Mackenzie, 1836.

- V. Sarah, born December 3, 1715, married in 1741 probably at Lower Yonkers, New York Benjamin, son of Joseph and Phebe (Hunt) Fowler who was born November 15, 1715 at Harrison, Westchester County, New York, died prior to June 6, 1786 (date of probate of will). Following their marriage, Benjamin and Sarah Fowler resided in present-day Yonkers, on Tuckahoe Road near the Nepperhan train station. Benjamin Fowler died there shortly before June 6, 1786 (date of probate of will), survived by his wife. Children: (1) Vincent, born 1744, married first Dorothy Valentine, married second Elizabeth Merritt; (2) Isabell, born _____, married Dennis Post; (3) Hannah, born _____, married Dr. Henry Fowler; (4) Ann, born _____, married Dennis Brewer; (5) Frederick, born _____, married _____. Children: (a) Sarah, born 1763, married Jeremiah Dobbs, died December 07, 1848; (6) Josiah, born _____, married Hannah Fowler; (7) Benjamin. Source Code #573 and will of Benjamin Fowler.

- VI. Hannah, born 1718. Living unmarried at the date of her mother Rachel's will April 3, 1742. No further records.

Isaac Vermilyea<sup>2</sup>, (Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1682 at New Harlem, New York, baptized April 1, 1682, at New York Dutch Reformed Church, married January 16, 1707 at the New York Dutch Reformed Church Josyntie, daughter of Joost and Maria/Marytje (Sammis) Van Oblinus who was baptized February 19, 1685. His will dated March 1, 1748, proved March 5, 1767. They were both living October 28, 1766, when they sponsored a baptism at the Tarrytown Dutch Reformed Church (Tarrytown baptism #1924); Isaac at least was dead by March 5, 1767, when his will was proved. If not interred in the churchyard of the Fordham Dutch Reformed Church, they may have been buried in the Dyckman/Nagel ground across the Harlem River in northern Manhattan. Source Codes: #40, #725 and following records.

The unrecorded will of John Oblinus dated May 11, 1717 mentions his sister Josantie Vermilias and husband Isaac Vermilias as well as by name her eldest son Tunis Cosa and her daughter Altie. Other children are mentioned as her children, but not listed by name. Source: The New York Historical Society, Publication Fund Series, for the year 1902 available at:

Source Code #10: Josyntie was the widow of Teunis, who left her with a child, Teunis was living in 1741.

At the time of her marriage to Isaac Vermilyea, Josyntje Van Oblinus was a widow. She had married (1st), at the New York Dutch Reformed Church, in late May 1702 (intentions dated 8 May), Teunis Corsa. He was born at New York City, and baptized at the New York Dutch Reformed Church April 14, 1680, son of Jan Corsa and his wife Metje (i.e., Martha) Cray. Teunis Corsa may have died not long after this marriage; the couple's only known child was named Teunis, for his father, an indication that he may have been a posthumous child. Following the death of his father when he was about 13, Isaac moved with his widowed mother to the Kingsbridge area of Lower Yonkers, although he is not listed with the family in the census of 1698.

Abstracts of Wills, Vol. VII, 1766-1771, available at Family Tree Maker Online, Page 413. In the name of God, Amen. I, Isaac Vermillie, of the Yonkers, in the County of Westchester, "being advanced in years and weak." I leave to my eldest son John oe5, over what I shall give him. I also leave to my son John my dwelling-house, buildings, and homestead and land, and one half of my salt meadow, and he is to pay to my executors oe300. I leave to my son Isaac the other half of my salt meadow, and 43 acres of woodland lying at Yonkers, not belonging to my homestead land, and he is to pay to my executors oe100. All the rest of my estate, with the sums named, I leave to all my children, John, Isaac, Petrus, Tunis Coursen, my son-in-law, and my daughters, Altie Teller, Maritie Teller, Santie Valentine, Rebecca Dyckman, and Hannah Odell, my said daughters being know by these names. My executors are to see that the division is equally and truly performed. Certain negroes are left to the daughters. My son Isaac is to have the liberty to live half a year in my house. If the sums of money are not paid, my executors may sell land. I make my son Petrus, and my son-in-law, Jacob Dyckman, executors. Dated March 1, 1748. Witnesses, John Bartow, Basil Bartow, John Stevenson. Proved March 5, 1767.

The will was proved at New York City March 5, 1767, nearly twenty years later. By then Peter Vermilyea "of Westchester County, weaver" was the only surviving executor, and John Bartow, Esq. the only surviving witness.

Johannes/John Vermilye<sup>2</sup>, (Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born about 1688/89 at New Harlem, New York, (probably baptized at the Harlem Dutch Reformed Church, whose records for this period are missing), married October 29, 1713 (This was a double wedding; at the same time and place, Johannes Odell, brother of Sarah, married Johanna/Hannah Vermilyea, sister of Johannes/John) at The Dutch Reformed Church, New York, Sarah, daughter of Johannes and Hannah (Michaels) Odell who was born about 1692 probably at Rye, Westchester, New York, died about 1734 at Lower Yonkers. Johannes/John married second 1734/35 Marytje DeBruyn or Brown widow of John's nephew Johannes Bussing and daughter of Frederick and Esther (Tourneur) DeVoe, who was born about 1705 died in 1782. He was deceased by 1781, date unknown. Source Codes #10, #40 and #725.

(Note: this Johannes Vermilyea lived a very long time, and over the course of his life the name gradually morphed from the Dutch Johannes to the English John. He appears in different records at different times under both names.)

Following the death of his father when he was a child, he removed with his widowed mother to the Kingsbridge area of Lower Yonkers, where he appears in the 1698 census. Source Code #725.

Following their marriage, Johannes/John Vermilyea and Sarah settled at Fordham Manor, where they resided for about thirteen years. On May 27, 1727, Johannes Vermilyea of Fordham Manor purchased from William and Rachel (Smith) Betts of Lower Yonkers a 100 acre lot in Lower Yonkers, part of a tract laid out in 1717 for the heirs of Samuel Betts (father of William), deceased (Westchester County Deeds, Liber F, p. 211). This rectangular lot lay in the southeastern part of Lower Yonkers (present-day Bronx); it was bounded on the east by the Bronx River (the boundary separating Lower Yonkers from Eastchester), and on the west by a road which is more or less today's Jerome Avenue. It would become Johannes Vermilyea's home farm, later left in his will to the son Abraham. Sometime after 1727, he purchased the 45-acre lot directly to the south, along with an additional 101 acres south of the 45-acre piece (these deeds were not recorded); by the time he was finished, Johannes Vermilyea owned the entire southeastern corner of Lower Yonkers. Today, his original 100-acre home farm makes up the central east-west strip of Woodlawn Cemetery, with most of the other 146 acres forming its southern part.

Despite his removal to Lower Yonkers, Johannes/John Vermilyea continued to hold land in the northern part of Fordham Manor, land which was probably less than a mile from his Yonkers farm. On May 28, 1733, the Consistory of the New York Dutch Reformed Church, which administered the Manor of Fordham on behalf of the Church, instructed four of its agents to "immediately summon Johannes Vermilye before them, and claim satisfaction for his not fulfilling his contract to build a house; and demand back the land which he has taken from the Church, or otherwise it will be exacted by law; likewise to see if good witnesses can be found that he has taken wood from the Manor, to enclose his own land.” (Ecclesiastical Records of New York State 2624). At this period, most farm leases included a clause that required tenants to improve the property by building a house on the land; Johannes Vermilyea had obviously not done so. He evidently patched things up with the Consistory however, because he still held land on the Manor in 1747. On June 29th of that year, the Consistory appointed a Committee “to go to the Manor with Mr. Hardenbroek, the overseer, to collect further information respecting the dispute between the old and young John Vermilye, and settle it if they can, and report to the Consistory.” (Ecclesiastical Records of New York State 2961) The issue here was obviously a dispute over the boundary between the Manor farm of John Jr. Vermilyea, (nephew of this Johannes/John) and that of his uncle, which adjoined it on the east. It is likely that, after the Manor was dissolved in 1756, Johannes/John Vermilyea purchased the land he had leased at Fordham, but the records are so inconsistent regarding the use of “Jr.,” it is hard to tell whether the John Vermilyea who bought different parcels there was this man or his nephew. Certainly, if he did own land at Fordham, he sold it before the date of his will, June 11, 1776.

About the year 1734, Sarah Odell, wife of Johannes/John Vermilyea, died at Lower Yonkers, perhaps due to complications resulting from childbirth. Johannes/John married (2nd), probably at Fordham Manor or Lower Yonkers, [1734/35], Marytje Brown, widow of his nephew Johannes Bussing, who had died in 1732. At the time of the marriage, Johannes/John was about 46, and Marytje about 30. (The marriage took place after January 20, 1734, since on that date Marytje was still calling herself the widow of Johannes Bussing, and not the wife of Johannes Vermilyea, when she and her brother Frederick Bruyn were sponsors at the New York Dutch Reformed Church for the baptism of their nephew Evert Bosch.) Marytje Brown (originally DeBruin or DeBruyn) was born at Fordham Manor, Westchester County (present-day Bronx) (1705), daughter of Evert Brown and his wife Maria DeVoe.

Note: The New Harlem Register asserts without any evidence, that Johannes/John Vermilyea married his second wife Marytje (New Harlem Register did not discover her identity) late in life, and that Sarah Odell, the first wife, was the mother of all his children. New Harlem Register’s editors obviously had not seen the following family record. It was entered in a farm ledger sometime in the 1830s by Isaac G. Vermilyea (born 1768), son of Gerardus Vermilyea (born [1740) and grandson of Johannes/John Vermilyea (born 1688/89), and copied in a family letter written by one of his daughters about 1870 to a niece in Illinois. It reads as follows:

John Vermilyea, father to Gerardus Vermilyea ---the widow Bussing Gerardus Vermilyea, son of the above, and father to Isaac G. Vermilyea---59 years	---Jane Valentine
Isaac G. Vermilyea, son of the above	---Catherine Kipp, daughter of
Born July 25th A.D. 1768	John Kipp. Born July 4th 1776

Catherine Kipp, daughter of John Kipp and Elizabeth Griffin, was the wife of Isaac G. Vermilyea, author of this record. Gerardus Vermilyea, born 1740 (he died in January 1799, aged, according to the record, 59 years) was the father of Isaac G., and Jane Valentine, wife of Gerardus, was the mother of Isaac G.; Gerardus Vermilyea and Jane Valentine were married by license dated August 5, 1762. Given all this, there is no other way to interpret the first entry but that John Vermilyea, grandfather of Isaac G., had married a “widow Bussing,” and that she was the grandmother of Isaac G. Vermilyea. But even without the evidence of this record, it should have been obvious to the editors of New Harlem Register that Sarah Odell, first wife of Johannes/John Vermilyea, could not possibly have been the mother of all his children, as they claimed. First of all, it is clear from the 1698 census that Sarah was born, at the very latest, about 1694, which would make her 46 at the birth of Gerardus in 1740. And Gerardus was not even the youngest child. When the son David, known to be younger than Gerardus, was born, Sarah would have been 48; at the birth of Benjamin, by all indications the youngest, she would have been at least 50. Moreover, of the five youngest children of Johannes/John Vermilyea (Joshua, Frederick, Gerardus, David and Benjamin), three named their eldest daughter Maria (i.e., Marytje), and the other gave his second daughter that name (the son Benjamin evidently had no children); none, except possibly Frederick, even had a daughter named Sarah. Given their Dutch background, this is a pretty good indication that their mother was named Mary, not Sarah. Not coincidentally, these five sons all have one other thing in common: none of their names have any prior association with either the Vermilyea or Odell families. But all are associated with the Brown family; Frederick, Gerardus, David, and Benjamin are the names of Marytje’s brothers, and Joshua is the name of her stepfather, Joshua Bishop. (Marytje had already given the name of her father, Evert Brown, to a son from her first marriage, i.e., Evert Bussing.) The evidence of these naming patterns alone is quite powerful, which is why, even without having seen the family record above, or knowing Marytje’s full identity, Mackenzie was able to guess correctly that all five of these sons had to be her children, and not Sarah’s. Due to the loss of the early Yonkers town records, as well as the registers of both the Fordham Dutch Reformed Church and the Anglican Church at Westchester, we know very little about his life at Lower Yonkers, other than the precise location of his land holdings, and the fact that, in 1763, as “John Vermilyea, yeoman,” he was recorded one of the 16 freeholders of Yonkers. He died at Lower Yonkers sometime prior to June 2, 1781; on that date, Isaac Valentine of the Borough of Westchester, blacksmith, mortgaged to Peter Valentine of the same place, yeoman (his brother) a piece of land in Yonkers which bordered on “land formerly belonging to John Vermilyea, deceased, but now to his two sons Frederick and Joshua Vermilyea” (Westchester County Mortgages, Liber D, p. 37). Source Code #725.

The following provided by Source Code #725. The will of John Vermilyea “of the Yonkers,” farmer, “far advanced in years,” was dated 11 June 1776. He leaves to his son Abraham the dwelling house and homestead, on the land purchased of William Betts (this was the 100 acre lot he acquired in 1727, today part of Woodlawn Cemetery), provided Abraham pays to his sisters Antje, Marytje, Sarah and Rebecca 35 pounds, to be divided equally among them. To his two sons, Joshua and Frederick, he leaves (1) the 45 acre lot he purchased of Samuel Betts (Samuel Betts was the younger brother of William; this lot adjoined the 100 acres given to Abraham, lying directly south of it), (2) the 99 and ½ acres purchased of Roger Barton (this land lay directly south of the 45 acre lot above; today both it and the 45 acre lot are part of Woodlawn Cemetery), and (3) the 40 acres purchased of Benjamin Betts (another brother of William; this land doubtless adjoined the 99 acre and 45 acre parcels), provided that Joshua and Frederick each pay to their sisters Antje, Marytje, Sarah and Rebecca the sum of 60 pounds, to be divided equally among them. He leaves to his three sons Abraham, Joshua, and Frederick, a piece of salt meadow at Harlem River, purchased of Nicholas Kortright. To his son Johannes he leaves the land which he purchased of Anthony “Basley” (the name was misrecalled by the testator; he had bought this land, which lay in present-day Lagrange, Dutchess County, from Anthony Badgley), provided that he pay to his sisters Antje, Marytje, Sarah and Rebecca 340 pounds, to be divided equally among them. To his two sons, Gerardus and David, he leaves the 231 acres he purchased of Benjamin Betts (this land was also in present-day Lagrange, Dutchess County), which they are to own as tenants-in-common, provided that Gerardus and David each pay to their sisters Antje, Marytje, Sarah and Rebecca 140 pounds, to be divided equally among them. To his wife Maritje he leaves all his household goods and furniture, along with 70 pounds to be paid out of his moveable estate. She is also to have the use of any room in his house, as well as his garden, as long as she remains his widow. In addition, the sons Abraham and Frederick are to provide her with meat, wheat and firewood, at her door, during her widowhood (these two were the sons who lived side by side on the adjoining Lower Yonkers farms; the son Joshua was apparently living some distance away with his father-in-law Thomas Emans). To John Kortright, his grandson (son of John Vermilyea’s deceased daughter Aeltje), he leaves 26 pounds, along with an unspecified debt originally owed by his father John Kortright (John Vermilyea’s son-in-law, who was deceased). All his stock, horses, hogs and sheep, and the rest of his personal estate, are to be sold for cash, and the proceeds given to his daughters Antje, Marytje, Sarah and Rebecca, and to his son Benjamin (Benjamin’s name was not originally written here, but was added as an afterthought). He stipulates that the monies left to his daughter Rebecca are to be held by his executors, and to be used by them as they think best for Rebecca and her children, not given to her directly. (Rebecca’s husband George Werts, AKA Jan Jurgen Wert, had been married twice previously, and had children by both marriages. Clearly, John Vermilyea did not want Rebecca’s share to go to her husband, who might use it for his other children.) As executors, he names his sons Abraham and Frederick, and his wife Marytje. The will was witnessed by William Betts (born say, 1736, John Vermilyea’s Lower Yonkers neighbor), Peter Bussing Jr. (John Vermilyea’s great-nephew, born 1735, who lived near the northeast corner of Fordham Manor), and Peter Bussing, son of Peter (born 1758, son of the above). All three witnesses affirmed that they had seen the testator add the name of his son Benjamin before signing. The will was proved at New York City April 23, 1782 (at least 10 months after John Vermilyea’s death, and probably longer), with Peter Bussing Jr. of Westchester County, yeoman, one of the witnesses, and Frederick Vermilyea, one of the executors, present.

The bequests of real property made in the will by John Vermilyea to his sons were probably executed fairly quickly, since this involved simply transferring formal title to the farms they had been living on for years; the bequests of cash were more complicated. That involved collecting a number of debts due the estate, as well as selling stock and other moveables for a decent price, neither of which could have been easy, given the devastated condition of lower Westchester at this time. It was evidently a slow process, and eventually, before all the debts could be collected, and the residuary legatees (those who were to receive the cash left over after expenses, namely, the four daughters and Benjamin) given their share, the executors named in the will began to die off. The widow Marytje was likely the first, followed by the son Abraham, who died some time before the probate of his own will on July 1, 1784, and finally the son Frederick, who was deceased by October 3, 1786, when Letters of Administration were issued on his estate.

With some debts still due the estate, and suddenly no one legally authorized to collect them, the surviving heirs petitioned the court to appoint a new executor (technically, an “Administrator with will annexed”). (This involved putting the will through probate all over again, which is why the will is recorded in two different books, #34 and #39.) On November 1, 1786, the court appointed “John Vermilyea of Yonkers in the County of Westchester, Yeoman, a grandson of John Vermilyea late of the same place Yeoman deceased, Administrator of the said John Vermilyea with his will annexed (the Executors of the said Will being deceased).” The new executor appointed by the court was John Vermilyea<sup>4</sup> (Abraham<sup>3</sup>Johannes/John<sup>2</sup>Johannes<sup>1</sup>); he was born at Lower Yonkers [1749], son of Abraham and Mehitabel (Betts) Vermilyea. The next day, November 2, 1786, Peter Bussing of Westchester in the County of Westchester, Yeoman, one of the witnesses to the will (his father having died in late 1782, Peter Bussing Jr. was now Peter Bussing), reaffirmed that he had seen the testator sign. That same day, the surviving residuary legatees signed a document waiving their rights to administer the estate, and acknowledging John Vermilyea as the new Administrator. This document, which has evidently never before been seen by Vermilyea researchers, is currently held at the New York State Archives in Albany. Because of its critical importance for a study of this family, and because it shows how badly New Harlem Register misunderstood the will of John Vermilyea, I will quote it in full:

“Know all men by these presents that We Johannes Waldron of the Out Ward of the City of New York Carpenter and Marytje his Wife, Antje Brown the wife of Abraham Brown of Phillips Manor in the County of Westchester farmer & Rebecca the Wife of George Woerts of the City of New York and Elizabeth Vermilyea the Widow of Benjamin Vermilyea residuary Legatees of John Vermilyea late of Yonkers in the County of Westchester aforesaid Yeoman Do hereby renounce our right of Administration with the Will of the said John Vermilyea annexed and Do request that the Administration may be granted unto John Vermilyea of Yonkers aforesaid Yeoman a grandson of the Testator. In Witness whereof We have hereunto set our hands and seals this second day of November 1786.

Sealed & delivered in the presence of Isaac Brown (he signed by mark)

(Note: Isaac Brown (born 1758) was the son of Abraham and Antje (Vermilyea) Brown). The document was signed by Johannes Waldron, and Mary Waldron, Antje Brown and Rebecca Worts made their marks. Elizabeth, widow of Benjamin Vermilyea, did not sign; after being entered in the document with the others, her name was carefully crossed out.

Children with Sarah Odell:

23. Child, probably born 1714, died young.

*24. John (Johannas), born about 1716.

*25. Antje (Anna), born in 1718.

*26. Abraham, born about 1721.

*27. Aeltie, born about 1723.

28. Jonathan, (possible son, deceased at date of his father’s will), born about 1726. If this child in fact existed, he probably died after 1758, unmarried, or in any case without leaving children. The (unplaced) Hannah Vermilyea, who died at Canal St., New York City, March 19, 1825, aged 87 (New York City Death Registers), could be his widow. (Note: she would have been born about 1738 in New York) Source: New York, New York City Municipal Deaths, 1795-1949, database, FamilySearch. Her name is spelled Vermilia in this record.

(Note: Transcription of A MUSTER ROLL OF THE MEN RAIS'D AND PASS'D MUSTER IN THE COUNTY OF WESTCHESTER FOR CAPT JONATHAN FOWLERS COMPANY, APRIL 20th 1758. There is a possible misinterpretation of the letter "D" used. The New York Historical Society transcribed this as being the first letter of the first name of the person listed, however since the "D" appears on a page many times it has been interpreted by Source Code #725 (who has had much experience reading 18th century documents) that it indicates "ditto". "Given the placement of the ditto, under the name Jonathan (here abbreviated Jona), there is no other way to interpret its meaning but that there were two militia captains, one named Jonathan Fowler, and one named Jonathan Vermilyea. (If the meaning were simply that Fowler was a captain, and that Vermilyea was also a captain, the mark would have been placed under the word Capt, and Capt would not have been re-entered.)

Of course, it is possible that this is simply a clerical error in the original document. There was another Vermilyea who was a militia captain a few years later (Isaac, born [1719], son of Isaac and Josyntje (Van Oblinus) Vermilyea), and this could be a reference to him. If, however, the entry was intentional, it probably means that Johannes Vermilyea and Sarah Odell had a son Jonathan, named for his maternal uncle Jonathan Odell. Since this would be the only known reference to this man (if in fact this is a reference), he most likely died unmarried, as he is not mentioned in his father's will. Source Code #725.

29. Maritie, born about 1728, married (as his second wife), at the New York Dutch Reformed Church, November 18, 1781, Johannes Waldron. He was Marytje's second cousin, born at Harlem April 12, 1721, son of Johannes and Elizabeth (Benson) Waldron, and had married (1st), at the Hackensack, New Jersey Dutch Reformed Church, April 28, 1745, Wyntje (i.e., Lavinia) Ter Hune. Following their marriage, Marytje and Johannes Waldron lived at Harlem, near the northern end of present-day Central Park. Johannes Waldron died there shortly before March 13, 1813, when his death was reported in the New York Weekly Museum. Marytje was apparently living in 1800 (Census, New York County, 7th Ward, p. 152), though no date has been found of death for her. She had no children, but her stepson Benjamin Waldron (born 1762) married 1788 Elizabeth Vermilyea, daughter of Frederick.
30. Sarah, born about 1731, must have died young as she is not listed in father's will.
- *31. Rebecca, born about 1733.

Children with Marytje Brown Bussing:

- *32. Joshua, born in 1735.
- *33. Frederick, born in 1737.
- *34. Gerardus, born in 1739.
- *35. David, born in 1741.
36. Benjamin born about 1743, married about 1767 Elizabeth, daughter of Peter and Mary (Brown) Nodine who was named in the will of her grandmother Susanna (DeVoe) Nodine dated January 13, 1762, and whose older sister Catherine Nodine (born 1745) married Frederick Vermilyea. (Note that Mary Brown, wife of Peter Nodine, is not the same person as Mary Brown, wife of Johannes Bussing and Johannes/John Vermilyea; the two Mary Browns were first cousins.) Elizabeth was born in 1749, died _____. He served in the Revolutionary War and died _____. Source Codes #40 and #725.

In 1775 He resided in Philipsburg. He was commissioned First Lieutenant in the East Philipsburg company of militia October 19, 1775 and Captain October 23, 1776. On December 13, 1776 he was charged as being a loyalist. The Committee for Conspiracies meeting at Connors Tavern at Fishkill read into the minutes a letter from General Wadsworth to General Spencer relative to a Number of Tories he had apprehended by order of General Lee. The named prisoners were described as being notoriously disaffected to the American Cause ... and should be removed to one of the neighboring States. Included on the list of twenty-four names were those of Benj. Vermiljea, Capt. and John Vermiljea. On December 26, 1776 the Committee for Conspiracies received information that on the night of the 19th of December the following Persons had effected their Escape from the Guard House; Benjamin and John were among the sixteen named. On his escape Benjamin fled to New York City which was then controlled by the British. His property was seized by the Commissioners of Sequestration and leased to Wm. Duvon. In 1784 Benjamin is listed on Rent Rolls of Philipse Manor, 1776-1784. Although the evidence here is not so cut and dried, it is very likely that Benjamin Vermilyea and his wife Elizabeth (almost certainly Elizabeth Nodine) had no children; that would be the simplest explanation for why her name was crossed out in the record. As the widow of Benjamin, she would have been legally entitled to one third of her husband's estate, but had no claim on the estate of her father-in-law Johannes Vermilyea, except insofar as she was representing any children she and Benjamin might have had, children who would thus be the grandchildren of Johannes. The fact that her name was crossed out suggests that she and Benjamin probably did not have any children, and there is certainly no evidence that they did. (Mackenzie claims that Benjamin and Elizabeth had at least three: a son William, and daughters Aeltje (wife of Thomas Austin Jr.) and Elizabeth (wife of Peter Barker). Mackenzie is wrong. While these three are siblings (as Mackenzie correctly guessed), they are all children of Isaac Vermilyea and his wife Susanna Meyer (See #37), which can be demonstrated quite easily, and in several ways.) The fact that Elizabeth's name is crossed out in the record above cannot be taken as absolute proof that they had no children, since there is another possible explanation. Benjamin Vermilyea was a Loyalist, and because he actually took up arms for the British, his estate was confiscated by the state of New York in 1783. So, it is possible his widow's name was crossed out for that reason, and not because they had no children. The only question here is whether Benjamin's attainder would have been an absolute bar to his children receiving an inheritance from their grandfather. If the answer is yes, then the fact that his widow's name was crossed out proves nothing. If the answer is no, and they could inherit an estate from their grandfather that did not pass through Benjamin, then the fact that the name was crossed out probably indicates there were no children. Source Code #725.

Some of these removed to New York City as early as 1792, John, Gerardus and David, before the revolution, removed from Yonkers to Lagrange, Dutchess County. They, in common with their children had now yielded their French Characteristics at least as to their speech, for it is known that John, called Honnes (Johannes) was wont to ask blessings in Dutch.

ODELL

Hannah Vermilye<sup>2</sup>, (Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born 1690-1693 at New Harlem, New York, married October 29, 1713 at the New York Dutch Reformed Church Johannes/John, Jr., son of Johannes and Hannah (Michaels) Odell who was born about 1690 probably at Rye, New York, died in 1738. This was a double wedding; at the same time and place, Johannes Odell's sister Sarah married Hannah Vermilyea's brother Johannes. His date of death (will proved July 27, 1738) and burial are unknown. She was living in 1755, but no death records found for her. Source Code #62: John Odell's will dated September 25, 1735 and proved July 27, 1738. He died in 1738.

Born at New Harlem, New York, Johannes/John O'Dell was an ancestor of Benjamin B. O'Dell who was Governor of New York from 1903 to 1905. Source Code #40.

Following their marriage, Hannah and Johannes Odell settled on a leased farm at Fordham Manor, where Johannes had resided since childhood, and where he died shortly before July 27, 1738. The will of Johannes Odell of the Manor of Fordham was dated September 25, 1735; it names his eldest son John, who was given 10 pounds for his birth-right, children John, Isaac, Abraham, Jonathan, Hannah and Aeltie, and his father John Odell, who was apparently still living. His wife Hannah, brother, Michael Odell (born about 1698/99) and son John were named executors. (Note: the fact that the son John was named an executor suggests that, at the date of the will, he was 21, or born no later than September 25, 1714.) The will was witnessed by (the ever-present) Joshua Bishop, Roger Barton, and Frederick Brown (stepson of Joshua Bishop, and later Johannes Odell's son-in-law), and proved July 27, 1738. I have found no precise date of death or place of burial for Johannes/John Odell. His widow Hannah (as "the widow Odell") appears on a list dated May 1, 1755 of Fordham Manor tenants indebted to the Church (Melick, p. 131); her date and place of death are also unknown. Source Code #725.

His will was dated at Philipsburgh January 12, 1766, and proved February 19, 1767; he was deceased by December 14, 1766, when his widow was a sponsor at the New York Dutch Reformed Church.  They lived in the old Stone Inn, aka: Old Odell Inn, on the roadside, at Abbotsford, just below Irvington. They were ardent and undaunted Patriots. He possessed a large landed estate of 563 acres extending from the Hudson River to the Saw Mill River. During the Revolutionary War, British forces encamped on his farm and destroyed and carried off property to a great amount. He was made a prisoner and confined in the Dutch Church in New York City and, thus, leaving his wife with a large family almost destitute of the means of subsistence. Margaret died March 20 1783. Jonathan died on September 23, 1818. They were buried in the Old Dutch Churchyard in New York City. Frederick and Marytje (Odell) DeVoe (her first cousin) who was born in 1722 at Fordham Manor, New York, died in 1779 (Mackenzie) at Yonkers, New York. She died in 1799 at Yonkers. Following their marriage, Daniel and Aeltje DeVoe settled at the southern end of Phillips Manor, just south of the line which today divides Westchester County and the Bronx, New York City. Daniel DeVoe died there sometime before March 13, 1784 (about 1779, says Mackenzie), when Letters of Administration on his estate were issued to Abraham Odell (his brother-in-law); the bond was signed by Abraham Odell, Isaac Vermilyea and Jacobus Dyckman, all of Phillips Manor. It is obviously wrong that Johannes (John or Hans) Teller husband of Aeltie Vermilye served in the Revolution as his will was proved February 17, 1767. This was probably a confusion with his son John who did serve as well as sons Jacobus (James) and Luke that we are aware of. Source Code #725.

Children:

I. Isaac, baptized April 16, 1730.

- II. John, baptized about April 1734, married October 8, 1764, Margaret Stoutenburgh. He served in the Revolutionary War.

Margaret Stoutenburgh, daughter of the first Jacobus, married October 8, 1764. John Teller, born 1741, son of John Teller and Aeltje Vermilye. Children, all baptized at Poughkeepsie: John I., born November 16, 1765, married Margaret, daughter of Jacobus Stoutenburgh, Jr., and widow of John L. Stoutenburgh; had a son, the late William Teller, of Rhinebeck, father of Mrs. Eugene Wells. ( This from another source: William, son of John (2) and Margaret (Stoutenburgh) Teller, was born in Hyde Park, New York, December 29, 1775, died at East Greenbush, June 31, 1862. He carried on farming on an extensive scale in East Greenbush. He married, February 21, 1808, Caroline M. Conklin, born at Clinton, New York, November 28, 1781, died March 3, 1871. Children: Margaret, Jacob Van Benschoten and Tobias). James, born 2 July, 1768, married, and had John, Morris and Margaret. Tobias, born 27 January, 1772, died October 19, 1854, of Red Hook; married Paulina and had B. Franklin, Monroe and Margaret. William, born December 29, 1775, married, and had Jacobus and Tobias. Most of the family of John Teller and Aeltje Vermilye came early to what is now the town of Hyde Park. Their chief residence was at "Teller's Hill," on the "Fourth Water Lot," where the large mansion of the family stood until 1830. Of the brothers, James died without issue; Luke left a large family, and John married as above stated; while Dr. Abraham Teller, who died in 1803, aged fifty-nine, was, perhaps, about the earliest settled physician in the neighborhood. - III. Jacobus (James), baptized April 10, 1736. He served in the Revolutionary War.

- IV. Luke, baptized 1738 or 1739, married in New York City November 10, 1765 Sarah (Sara), daughter of Theodorus and Denicke (Vlot) Snediker, a resident of New York City. He served in the Revolutionary War. They had ten or twelve children. Children (can't be verified) (1) Auby; (2) Richard, married Margaret Stoutenburg; (3) Theodours; (4) James; (5) Elizabeth; (6) Catherine; (7) Abram; (8) Rachel.

- V. Abraham, baptized June 28, 1743, married in 1775 Margaret Driemer.

- VI. Catherine, baptized April 27, 1728, married John Stoutenburgh.

John Stoutenburgh, son of the first Jacobus, married by license dated November 25, '773' Catharine, daughter of John Teller and Aeltje Vermilye, who died August 27, 1805, in her seven-sixth year. They had no children. He had from his father, besides other property, valuable mill privileges on Crumelbow creek. He was one of the chief founders of the Reformed Dutch Church of Hyde Park, and one of its first officers. He died at Hyde Park, February 21, 1808, in his seventy-ninth year. In his will, dated January 3, 1807, after directing a wall five feet high to be built around the family burying ground (it still stands), and freeing his slaves, to whom he gave legacies, he distributed a considerable estate among his heirs, who were his surviving sister, Margaret Teller, and his nephews and nieces. - VII. Dynche (Jozine or Jozina), married Jacobus Stoutenburgh.

Jacobus Stoutenburgh, Jr., son of Jacobus, married June 23, 1764. Josina, daughter of John Teller, of Teller's Point, and Aeltje Vermilye. He lived in the stone house at the Lower Corners, which he inherited, together with a considerable farm adjoining. At the close of the Revolution he purchased the confiscated estate of Christian Bergh, which joined his own on the south, and which Mr. Bergh had intended for the portion of his daughter, Maria Barbara, wife of Martin Dob, who built the stone house, still standing, east of the road. Children: James I. (Captain), born February 1, 1767, married (first) March 3, 1793, Catharine E., daughter of Richard Snediker, of Spacken Kill, in the town of Poughkeepsie, who died August 4, 1815, aged forty; and (second), April 15, 1824, Sarah Patchen. He inherited part of the late Bergh estate, and built the first part of the house afterward the residence of the late Daniel S. Miller; but soon sold the property. He was an active man, and made many- changes during his life. Alida, born April 19, 1769; married, first, October 13, 1794, Dr. Hiram Walker (who settled at Hyde Park, but died early), and, second, Walton Street, of Coxsackie. Margaret, born December 26, 1771; married, first, John L., son of Luke Stoutenburgh, and, second, John I. Teller, son of John Teller and Margaret Stoutenburgh. John I., baptized May 24, 1774, died March 18, 1822; married Sarah Griffin, of Lyme, Conn., and had Margaret, born 1797, died March 6, 1802, and Sarah Catharine, born February 8, 1807, died March 14, 1888; married William B. Piatt, of Rhinebeck. The homestead of John I. Stoutenburgh was on the east side of the road, at the Lower Corners, on the property now owned by Mrs. Calista Jones. The house stood until after 1850. Luke I., born January 28, 1779; married Elizabeth Catharine, daughter of Anthony A. Hoffman and Elizabeth Snediker, and niece of his brother James' wife. They had, Josina, married Storm Truesdell, of Coxsackie; Walton Street, of Coxsackie, who died about 1872; Edgar, died July 29, 1811, aged one year four months; Richard Anthony, born August, 1816, and Cortland Augustus, born January, 1820.

Luke I. Stoutenburgh lived in the house late the residence of his father. In later years this became the property of John I. Teller; and after having had several owners, and a long list of tenants, was finally destroyed by an in-cendiarj' (?) fire, on the night of August 6, 1864. Then for some years it formed a picturesque ruin. Source Code #742. (Some typographical corrections have been made to this entry)

VIII. Rachel, baptized July 6, 1741, married Luke Stoutenburgh.

Luke Stoutenburgh, youngest son of the first Jacobus, married, first, August 2, 1762, Rachel, daughter of John Teller and Aeltje Vermilye, by whom he had eight children. He married, second, November 24, 1782, Mary Van Vleck, widow of Henry Minthorne, who survived him.

To Luke he gave that portion of his estate lying between the lands given to Tobias and William; the creek bounding it on the north, while on the south were the lands of Jacobus, Jr. An abstract of title says this deed of gift was made in 1758, and confirmed by will. Luke died before 1789, and in 1791 his farm was divided by commissioners into forty-two lots, and apportioned among the heirs; two lots, comprising the mansion and its environs, being left undivided. It was this division, and the establishment of a Church that decided the site of the village, now Hyde Park; some of the smaller lots being soon disposed of. Luke lived in the stone house built by him, or his father, on the brow of the hill at the end of an avenue of cherry trees leading from the Post road. Some say Jacobus, himself, lived in this house in his later years. The avenue became a thoroughfare to the "Upper", or "DeCantillon's Landing;" the road curving around the north side of the house and thence down the hill; and in 1791 lots were laid out along it. It is now known as Market street. The house was fully equal to the one at the Lower Corners, and perhaps a little larger. It was visible from the river, and in 1777 the British vessels, passing up to burn Kingston, fired on it. Several cannon balls were afterward found, and are still preserved in the town. In 1872 this house, long in a neglected condition, was taken down in order to straighten the road.

Luke Stoutenburgh and Rachel Teller had: James L., died 16 December, 1831, aged sixty-seven years, eight months, nineteen days; married Sarah Morris, who died March 15, 1846, aged seventy-one years, nine months, eleven days. John L., baptized February 1, 1767, died December 1, 1794; married Margaret, daughter of Jacobus Stoutenburgh, Jr.; had one child, John, died September 15, 1797, aged three years; and his widow married John I. Teller. Luke L., born January 28, 1770; never married. Tobias L., born September 2, 1772; died March 27, 1846; married Esther Rogers. William L., born September 10, 1775, died in Brooklyn January 22, 1864; married Mary Juliet Dutton. Peter L., born __, married Pamela _____, removed to New York. Margaret, born February 27, 1779, died August 28, 1835, married January 18, 1797, Richard Teller, son of Luke Teller, and Sarah Snediker, born July 28, 1775; and had Catharine, Eleanor and Margaret, all died unmarried, and the late Col. Richard Teller (born 1822) of New York. Eleanor married Samuel Van Vleck, of Pittston, Rensselaer, County., New York, and had Mary and Catharine. Source Code #742. John Vermilyea, Jr.<sup>3</sup>, (Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born April 7, 1713 at Yonkers, New York, married about 1734 Gerritje/Charity, daughter of Jacobus and Jannetie (Kiers) Dyckman who was born at Harlem, New York. For his entire adult life (although not in every record), he was called John Vermilyea Jr., in deference to his uncle Johannes Vermilyea (born 1688/89) of Lower Yonkers. Resided Kingsbridge. Source Codes: #149, Tree #5605 and following records.

Source Code #91: He was living February 27, 1774. Charity and John were second cousins. John Vermilye is called "of Kingsbridge" by James Riker, but whether this description applied to him all his married life or only after he inherited his father's Yonkers farm is not clear. Isaac, his eldest son, was "of Fordham Manor" in 1756 according to his marriage license; was he then living with his parents? His second son, Jacob, died in the Borough Town of Westchester in Fordham.

It is difficult to trace a John Vermilye of this period for three of the name were then contemporaries in and around Fordham and Yonkers; John Sr., a rich Yonkers landowner, born in 1688 his son John Jr., according to Riker called "Honnas," whose name appears in Fordham Manor history and who moved to Dutchess County before the Revolutionary War; and his nephew John, Isaac's son, who married Gerritje Dyckman. John Jr., and probably John Sr., owned property in Fordham after the Dutch Church disposed of manor land. Our John, Isaac's son also may have been a landowner there but no information yet found identifies him as one of the Johns named in the manor history. He may well have been the John of the neighboring Borough Town of Westchester mentioned in a 1764 deed which concerned other members of the family as well as Jacob Dyckman Jr.

When John's father Isaac died (will dated March 1, 1748) his will was probated March 5, 1767. By it our John received, his father's house, buildings, homestead, and one-half and salt meadow, for which he was to pay the estate £300; his brother Isaac Jr., was left the other half of the salt meadow and forty-three acres of woodland in Yonkers not part of the homestead, for which he was to pay £100; the remainder of the estate was to be divided among sons John, Isaac, Petrus and Tunis Coursen (a stepson called son-in-law in the will) and daughters Altie Teller, Maritie Teller, Santie or Sarah Valentine, Rebecca Dyckman, and Hannah Odell (wife of John Odell of Fordham and mother of Abraham and Jonathan Odell who married Dyckman sisters." Jacob Dyckman, son-in-law, and son Petrus were named executors.

Gerritje's birth, marriage, or death records have not been found, but she signed the deed of sale for the Kiersen farm in 1763 with her husband and she is named in her father's will in 1767. Her parents were married June 6, 1716, and her brother Jan was baptized November 9, 1718. Was she born between these dates and did she marry fairly young, about 1734-35? Her husband was her second cousin, grandson of Aeltie (Waldron) Vermilye, sister of Gerritje's grandmother, Rebecca (Waldron) Dyckman.

Source Code #46: When my great grandfather died (whom I do not recollect) at Kingsbridge, he left three sons: Isaac, Jacob, William and perhaps daughters. Isaac being the eldest claimed the homestead at Kingsbridge, by right of primogeniture, according to the English law; although he had his farm and was living at Yonkers. Jacob, who lived on the homestead with his father, contested the right and finally agreed to buy the Kingsbridge farm from his brother and spent his life there with his family. But of that large property, not an acre is now owned by any of the name, Jacob's family having exhausted and used it up.

DYCKMAN

Rebecca Vermilye<sup>3</sup>, (Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1717, married about 1736/37 Jacob Dyckman son of Gerrit/Garret Dyckman, died between 1760 and 1762. He died about 1765. He was named executor of her father's will in 1748. He was the first male Dyckman to make his home north of Manhattan Island. He may have left Harlem for Philipsborough about 1741 as he was Constable in Harlem in 1739-40. His second child and first son, was baptized on June 6, 1741 in the Old Tarrytown Church, and named according to custom, after his paternal grandfather. The date, June 6, 1741, seems to indicate that his parents had moved to Philipsborough by that time. Source Codes: #10, #62, #91, and #476 (page 763).

He was a Loyalist and left New York when it was evacuated by the British in 1783, and on April 20, 1784, was granted Lot No. 66 in Parr Town (St. John). Source Code #525.
- III. Isaac, baptized April 30, 1743 in the Old Tarrytown Church, died after March 31, 1760. He enlisted March 31, 1760, from "Phillipse Burrah" and was a member of Captain Bayeaux's Company. He was a Tailor or so his trade is given on this enlistment record. A brief note adds that his Heirs received the pay due him at time of death. ## WERTS

Rebecca Vermilye<sup>3</sup>, (John<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born about 1733, married about 1768 Jan Jurgen Wert (George), his third wife. Source Codes #10, #62, #725 and family letter from Catherine Crygier to William J. Kennard dated 1879 where she states "according to the old Bible at Uncle George's house, Grandmother Crygier's maiden name was Werts and her mother's maiden name was Rebecca Vermilyea".

Her father's will dated June 11, 1776 states "my executors to take charge of Rebecca's share, to be put out at interest for the benefit of Rebecca and her children, and to be paid to her as executors see fit". It would appear from this that Rebecca may have been a widow with more than one child at that time.

Children:

- I. Joshua, born in 1770. A mention in the Crygier family bible of Mary's brother's children Margaret and John, however there is no mention of the brother's names.

Mary and Isaac are buried in Green-wood Cemetery but were exhumed from earlier spot and moved there by son William James Kennard so their burial dates in the online search function for Green-wood are the same day and are not accurate for death dates--death dates from the Family Bible. They were first buried in 12 Ave. Cemetery, but when their son William James bought a plot in Green-wood Cemetery for his daughter, he had their bodies moved. Children: They were the parents of six children, only 2 survived to adulthood: (a) Albert George, born about 1828, died between 1840 and 1850; (b) William James, born January __, 1835, married

Abstract of Wills, Volume X, 1780-1782, page 106: In the name of God, Amen. I, Joshua Vermilya, of the County of Westchester, yeoman, being very weak in body. All my just debts and funeral charges to be paid and fully satisfied. I leave to my dearly beloved wife as much of the household furniture as she shall think proper; Also my negro wench Sarah; also oe150, payable one month after my deceased by my executors, they also to pay unto her as much money as will purchase her a decent suite of mourning apparel. Unto my son Thomas oe10 when twenty-one. The lands and meadows that was left between my brother Frederick Vermilya and myself, by my father, to be divided as soon as possible and the part falling to my estate be sold. In case it should appear to my executors that the monies arising from the sale of my lands shall be better applied in purchasing a place that may serve for the support and bringing up my family and children better than putting the money to interest, they to do either they may think best; should they purchase a place as aforesaid, then the place so purchased to be sold when my son Thomas becomes twenty-one years of age. My executors shall, immediately after my deceased, dispose of my negro wench, Jane, my negro boys, Pomp, Yaff, and Squire, and my negro man, Jack, to the best advantage they can; likewise, my part of the crop of wheat I have sown on the farm of Mr. John De Lancey, when they shall think it most advantageous. I would wish and desire that my negro man John may remain with the family for the support and bringing up of my children as long as they keep a place or farm, and to be disposed of when the place or farm is disposed of. Unto my daughter Anna oe25 when she becomes eighteen years of age. The remainder of my estate to be divided between my four children, vizt: Thomas, Isaac, Anna and Polly, as follows: Two thirds to my two sons, the remaining third between my two daughters. At the death of Frederick Vermilyea in 1786, the estate was administered by his widow Catherine (Nodine) Vermilyea of Yonkers and Elizabeth Vermilyea, widow of Benjamin Vermilyea of the Out Ward of New York City. This unusual arrangement (widows were normally joined in the administration of their late husbands' estates by male relatives who lived in the same town, not female former in-laws who lived elsewhere) suggests that Catherine and Elizabeth had an extremely close relationship. His son Isaac, born July 14, 1769, and died December 11, 1855 married Jane (Odell) Honeywell, daughter of Jonathan and Margaret (Dyckman) Odell and widow of John Honeywell.

Jacob Vermilyea<sup>4</sup>, (John<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born about 1740 in Westchester County, New York, married first April 10, 1766, Susannah (Maretje) Dyckman, married second (Marriage bond June 15, 1773), Mary Dyckman who was born June 2, 1752, died February 23, 1826. He died January 31, 1814. They are buried in the Nagel-Dyckman Cemetery. (Note: Some persons originally buried in Dyckman-Nagel Cemetery in New York City near the northernmost end of Manhattan Island were removed to Woodlawn Cemetery in 1926. Of these 417 burials only 67 could be identified). Source Codes: #10, #62, #247 (New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, 1890 edition, page 82), #476, page 727.

Source Code #91: Jacob Vermilye lived in Fordham Manor, Philipsborough Manor, where he first rented and later bought a manor farm, and perhaps in 1779, he was in Cortlandt Manor on the tax list, Middle Ward. When he signed the Oath of Allegiance, October 31, 1781, he was of Philipsborough. By 1800 he had returned to Fordham to live in the Borough Town of Westchester. A deed of sale disposing of twenty-seven acres, to James Bathgate for $1227.32 documents his residence there and names members of his family; John Vermilye of Yonkers and wife Rebecca; Garardus Vermilye of the Town of Westchester, farmer; Jane Vermilye of same place, spinster; Jacob Cregier of same place (for Jacob's daughter Susan), Maria Vermilye, widow of Jacob, formerly of same place, farmer, deceased. Jacob had two children by his first wife (John and Garardus) and seven by his second (William, Susan, Isaac, James, Michael, Jane and Rebecca).

Source Code #91 continues with information on Mary Dyckman. Mary and her cousin Jacob were married before the Revolution and may have lived for a short time in Fordham, his home. Probably about the time her father left Manhattan, Vermilye took his family into Westchester County. He seems to have settled in Yonkers, perhaps on the farm which after the war he bought from the Commissioners of Fortitude. This farm was bounded on the east by the Sprain and was a favored stopping place for Westchester Guides on their way to or from raids on Loyalists based in Morrisania or Fordham. At such times Mary must have had the pleasure of entertaining her brothers Abraham and Michael and perhaps Jacobus. Vermilye was described as of Philipsborough when he took the oath of Allegiance to the United States, October 31, 1783. In the 1800 census however, he is listed as head of a family in Fordham and in 1801 he was recorded with his brother-in-law Jacobus Dyckman as a trustee of the Fordham Reformed Dutch Church.

There is a group of 15 family members who were buried at Brookhaven, New York, from about 1802 to 1873. There exists today a Brookhaven, New York, on Long Island (near Mastic). Research indicates, however, that these family members resided in Yonkers and Fordham Manor, New York; and thus, there is doubt that they would have been buried way out on Long Island. This raises the question: was there another Brookhaven in the early 1800's? Research is needed. The family members, followed by their number, if known, and year of burial, were: Grandus Vermilye, (#106), 1823; Jacob Vermilye, (#38), 1814; Jane Vermilya, (#112?), 1855; Jane Rebecca Vermilye, (?), 1855; Joanna Vermilye, (#120), 1873; John Vermilya, (#105?), 1825; Mary Vermilyea, (?), 1802; Mary Vermilya, (?), 1826; Mary Vermilye, (?), 1835; Mary Vermilye, (?), 1847; Rebecca Vermilya, (#113?), 1828; Rebecca Vermilya, (wife of #105?), 1850; William Vermilye, (#107), 1822; William Vermilya, (#39), 1822; and William W. Vermilye, (#118), 1849. Source Code #247.

William Vermilye<sup>4</sup>, (John<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born April 8, 1748 at Fordham Manor (present day Bronx, New York), married first April 10, 1773 at the Lutheran Church in New York City Marytje, daughter of Jacob and Marytie (Delanoy) Brouwer who was born November 2, 1755 in New York City, died at New York City a day or two prior to April 15, 1778, when she was buried at Trinity Church (Trinity Church Burial Registers). (The register gives her age as 26 years, overstating it somewhat, but there is no doubt as to her identity.) William married second in 1778 (probably in New York City) Mary daughter of Henry and Annatje (Brouwer) Taylor (She is also referred to as Forbes?) who was born in 1754, died April 14, 1835 at New York City, and was buried at the Dyckman/Nagel ground near Kingsbridge. He died March 8, 1822, buried in the Dyckman Old Dutch Cemetery, Harlem. He was reinterred in 1926 in one of the common graves in the Woodlawn Cemetery plot. There is record at the Christ Lutheran Church, New York, New York of William Vermilya marrying April 10, 1773 Mary Brower. Haaker, New York, 1954.

June 1776: William was included on a list of 106 names as a fireman in New York City under the command of Jacous Stoutenburgh. It is clear from this source that these men were formed as a separate company of militia for the preservation of the city in case of invasion. Source: Firemen of the City of New York, June 1776, pp 315-16, Calendar of Historical Manuscript Relating to the War of the Revolution, Published by the New York Secretary of State, Albany, 1868.

October 16, 1776: With the British now firmly in control of New York City, William was one of 948 inhabitants of New York City, along with John Vermilyea, to sign a pledge addressed to "Admiral Lord Richard Howe and General Sir William Howe expressing loyalty to King George the Third and praying that they (the Howe's) would restore this city and county to His Majesty's protection and peace."

Source Code #91: William Vermilye was a builder by trade. He built Boscobel, (for more information about Boscobel check www.Boscobel.org) his cousin States M. Dyckman's mansion on the Hudson. No formal plans have been found, so evidently the two worked out the design together. From 1812 until his death he was a surveyor for the Eagle Insurance Company.

Source Code #10: Went to New York as early as 1792, was a builder, and from 1812 till his death surveyor for the Eagle Insurance Company. He died March 8, 1822, aged 73 years, 11 months.

Source Code #46: William, our grandfather, was the youngest son and had no part in the farm. He avoided all controversy about it, and I imagine inherited very little from his father. He had learned the trade of builder and built many of the first houses of that day both in the city and on the river; acting as architect as well as builder. They have "owned vessels", but in his later years was engaged in the Chief Insurance Company of the city as their investor; and that may have given you the idea that he was connected with shipping. He was a very handsome man; but better than that he was a man of high character, and honest, simple-minded Christian respected and beloved by all who knew him. I recollect him; for he died after I went to Yale College. He had a first wife from whom was one daughter Nana; Mrs. Choidavoye (long deceased); who had a good many descendants. A second wife was our grandmother, by whom he had William W. (my father), Thomas B., and Robert; and a daughter Joanna (Mrs. G. B. Smith) still living in Newark, New Jersey with her daughter, Mrs. Rockwood, aged 83. She has had several children; and one son and four daughters yet live in or near this city. She was the youngest of the family. Grandmother (referring to Mary Taylor Vermilye) died at the house of G.B. Smith (husband of daughter Joanne) with whom she lived many years ago at an advanced age. She was a Christian woman and of a good deal of cultivation.

VERMILYE

Mary Vermilyea<sup>4</sup>, (Peter<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1751 in New York (possibly Croton Valley, Westchester County), married June 1773 (marriage bond June 15) John, son of Isaac and Mehitable (Hadley) Vermilyea, died _____. Isaac Vermilyea<sup>4</sup>, (Peter<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1754 at Fordham Manor, Westchester County (present-day Bronx, New York City), married first in 1780 in Dutchess County, New York (probably at Rombout, present day East Fishkill) Mary, daughter of Jonas and Aeltie (Michaels) Caniff who was born about 1755 at Rombout, New York, died about 1785 at Digby, Canada. Isaac married second about 1786 at an unknown location Jemima, daughter of Isaac and Rebecca (Somes) Jewell who was born at Rombout Precinct, (present-day East Fishkill), Dutchess County, about 1755, died probably between 1800 and 1810. Isaac died in 1815 at Brooklyn, New York. Information for this family is from #725.

As a baby, Isaac was brought by his parents to the West Ward of Cortland Manor (present day Cortlandt), Westchester County; about 1775, he accompanied them on their brief move to the Great Nine Partners Patent (present-day Stanford), Dutchess County; when his parents returned to Cortland Manor about 1779, Isaac remained behind in Dutchess.

Not long after the start of the Revolutionary War, Isaac Vermilyea embraced the Loyalist side, and enlisted in one of the British provincial military units; in 1779, Isaac Vermilyea, "a deserter from the enemy," was brought before the Dutchess County Committee of Safety. He was required to post a bond to ensure future good behavior, and pledged not to travel more than one mile from his residence, except for performing duty in the Patriot militia. (This is the reason that Isaac's name appears on the rolls of the local Dutchess County troops.)

Isaac Vermilyea married (1st), most likely at Rombout Precinct (present-day East Fishkill), Dutchess County, 1780, Mary Caniff. She was born at Rombout about 1755, daughter of Jonas Caniff, a Loyalist, and his wife Aeltje Michaels; at the time of her marriage, Mary may have been a widow with one child

(see below). Following his marriage, Isaac Vermilyea broke his parole, and re-enlisted with the British forces, serving out the war as a soldier in the Westchester Refugees. At the conclusion of the war, all those who had taken up arms for the British were obliged to leave the country, and in the summer of 1783, Isaac and his wife gathered in New York City with other Loyalists to take passage for the Maritimes; while there, they baptized their daughter Mary at the Dutch Reformed Church (see below). (Note: New Harlem Register mistakenly assigned this child Mary to Isaac Vermilyea (born 1757), son of Isaac Jr. and Mehitabel (Hadley) Vermilyea. But that Isaac died unmarried, as his 1821 will—which New Harlem Register’s editors never examined—makes clear.)

Isaac Vermilyea next appears at Annapolis (present-day Digby) County, Nova Scotia; a muster roll of Loyalists dated June 1784 shows him with a household of one man (Isaac himself), one woman (wife Mary), two children under ten (daughters Sarah and Mary), and one child over ten (unidentified, but perhaps a child of Mary from an earlier marriage). Mary Caniff, first wife of Isaac Vermilyea, died at Digby about 1785, and Isaac married (2nd), place unknown, about 1786, Jemima Jewell. She was born at Rombout Precinct, (present-day East Fishkill), Dutchess County, about 1755, daughter of Isaac and Rebecca (Somes) Jewell, and sister of Richard Jewell (1746-1822), a Loyalist who, because he did not take up arms, was allowed to remain in Dutchess County.

Like many Loyalists, Isaac Vermilyea was unhappy with his situation in Nova Scotia, and decided to risk returning to the States. By 1789 he was at Brooklyn, Kings County, New York, where he executed a Power of Attorney, allowing his wife Jemima, still back in Nova Scotia, to sell his property there; she soon joined him at Brooklyn with their children. I have not found Isaac Vermilyea in the 1790 census, but in 1800 he was at Brooklyn with a household of 20001-11001: Isaac was the man over 45 (born 1754), and wife Jemima the woman over 45 (born 1755); the daughter under ten was Jemima (born 1796), the daughter 10-16 was probably Mary (born 1783, with her age understated); the two sons were George (born about 1791) and another unidentified (born about 1793). In 1810, Isaac Vermilyea was recorded (as Isaac “Furmelyer”) with a household of 00101-00000; this indicates that wife Jemima died sometime between 1800 and 1810, and that Isaac was living alone with one of his sons, perhaps George, born about 1791. Isaac Vermilyea died at the Brooklyn Almshouse in 1815; there is no probate file on record for him.

Children with Mary Caniff:

*132. Sarah, born October 22, 1781.

133. Mary, born in 1783, baptized at the Dutch Reformed Church in New York City July 2, 1783 with no sponsors, and named for her paternal grandmother Mary Pinckney, wife of Peter Vermilyea. She is apparently the female child aged 10-16 in 1800, living with her father and step-mother in Brooklyn. She was named in the will of her grandfather Jonas Caniff, dated at Fishkill August 21, 1802; he calls her "my granddaughter Mary Ver Milyea," which indicates that she was still unmarried at that time. No further record.

134. Child, born 1785. Possible but doubtful.

Children with Jemima Jewell:

- *135. Peter, born in 1787.
- *136. Philip, born 1789.
- 137. George, born in 1791 at Brooklyn, New York. (The name George was at this period unheard of in the Vermilyea family, but was an important and much-used name among the Jewells.) On October 4, 1813, George Vermilyea, born at Brooklyn, age 24 (sic), enlisted in Captain Humphrey's Company, 6th US Infantry. His birthplace of Brooklyn clearly marks him as a child of Isaac and Jemima (Jewell) Vermilyea, although I feel that, unless he was a twin of Phillip above (unlikely), the age in the enlistment record is overstated by two years. He is surely one of the two sons under ten in the 1800 census. No further record.
- 138. Son, born about 1793. (By rights this couple should have had a son Isaac, named for his father, and for his maternal grandfather Isaac Jewell.) He would be the other of the two sons under ten in the 1800 census. No further record. Source Code #725,
- 139. Jemina, born January 25, 1796 at Brooklyn, New York, and named for her mother. (Her birth date comes from the New York City Methodist baptismal registers, which recorded the date of birth, but not of the baptism.) She was the daughter under ten in the 1800 census. No further record.

SHEAR

Susan Vermilyea<sup>4</sup>, (Peter<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1756 at Fordham Manor, Westchester County, New York married in 1778, probably in Dutchess County, New York John, son of Peter and Margaret (Uhl) Shear who was born about 1754 in Dutchess County, New York, died _____. She died in 1838. They lived in Cobleskill, Schoharie County, New York. There are no gravestones, newspaper notice, or probate record found for either. Source Codes #10, #62 and #725.

Children:

- I. Mary (Polly), born November 8, 1779 (1779 is correct year of birth, not 1777 as listed on grave marker) married in 1795 at Coeymans, Albany County, New York Levi son of Jonathan and Susannah (Brooks) Safford who died in 1831 at Carlisle, Schoharie, New York. She died August 29, 1875 at Carlisle, Schoharie, New York, buried in the Grovenors Corners Cemetery, Carlisle. They had 13 or 14 children. Source Code #725.
- II. Child, born about 1779.
- III. Nancy, born about 1781, married John Chichester. They had two children. According to New Harlem Register, Child: Clarissa, born November 9, 1807, died at Carlisle, April 24, 1891, wife of Darius Underhill, was a daughter of Nancy, but this is not confirmed.
- IV. Peter I., born 1783, married in 1805 Susannah Moshier who was born in 1786 and died September 11, 1853. He died February 15, 1853. They are buried in the Richmondville Cemetery, Schoharie, New York. They had nine children.

- V. Philip I., born September 14, 1785 in Dutchess County, New York, married June 5, 1808 at New Scotland, Albany County, New York Eunice, daughter of George and Lucy (Lee) Mitchell who was born May 16, 1791 at Lyme, Connecticut. Philip died in the town of Greenville, Greene County, March 4, 1865. Eunice died June 8, 1865, they are buried in the Locust Center Cemetery, Greenville, New York. They had seven children.
- VI. Margaret, (probably a twin of Philip), born in Dutchess County (according to the 1855 and 1865 New York State census), in 1785, and named for her paternal grandmother Margaret Uhl, wife of Peter SCHERER. (Note: according to her grave stone, she died September 22, 1866, aged 80 years and 13 days, and was therefore born about September 9, 1786, one year and five days off from Philip's birthday (14th Sept. 1785). If this is her actual birthday, it is hard to see how she can be a child of John and Susan, even though all other evidence points in that direction. However, it is possible the gravestone is incorrect, or perhaps misread. In four census records (all Coeymans, Albany County), Margaret's age is given as follows: 1850: 64, 1855: 69, 1860: 74, 1865: 79, unusually consistent, and all pointing to a birth year of 1785, not 1786 (these censuses were all taken before her September birthday). As to the discrepancy between her birthday (9th September) and that of Philip (14th September), if her date of death were actually September 27th, rather than September 22nd (misread, whether in family records or in the gravestone transcription), the discrepancy disappears). Margaret Sheers married at the First Presbyterian Church of Albany, October 23, 1808, Wilhelmus Mosier who was born about October 1, 1782, son of Stephen and Catherine (Row) Mosier, and was the older brother of Susannah Mosier who married Peter I. SHEARS, son of John and Susan (Vermilyea) Shears. This circumstance alone makes it highly likely that Margaret and Peter I. Shears were siblings though she is not listed in the New Harlem Register. The marriage record notes that both bride and groom were "of Coeymans," and the 1855 census states that Margaret had come to Coeymans about 1805, the exact time that John and Susan (Vermilyea) Shears arrived there. The couple lived at Coeymans, where Wilhelmus Mosier died September 6, 1832. Margaret married (2nd), at Coeymans, about 1840, as his 3rd wife, Moses Stanton. He was born in Greene County about November 19, 1774, and died at Coeymans April 15, 1858, aged 83 years, 4 months and 27 days. Margaret died there September 22, 1866, and is buried in the Stanton Cemetery, Coeymans. The 1865 New York State Census notes that she was a widow, mother of 7 children, and married twice, which proves that she was single (and therefore born a SHEARS) when married to Wilhelmus Mosier. Given all the circumstances, it seems most likely that she is a daughter of John and Susan (Vermilyea) Shears. If not, it is hard to see who her parents could be. The only other Shears family in Coeymans at the time was that of Peter Shears (born 1748), John's older brother. But that family settled in Coeymans about 1787, not 1805, and Peter had his own daughter Margaret, born about 1779, who married Thomas Craft; both Crafts were living at Coeymans in 1855 and 1860. Source Code #725.
- VII. John I. Jr., born about 1787, married first June 4, 1809 at Greenville Presbyterian Church Polly, daughter of Stephen Lee who was born about 1791 at Lyme, Connecticut. She was a first cousin of Eunice Mitchell, wife of Philip Shear. John married second Polly Martha, (See #181) daughter of Philip Vermilyea<sup>4</sup>, (Peter<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1758, baptized September 6, 1758 at Old Tarrytown (Dutch) Church, Tarrytown, New York. (Jacob and Rebecca Dyckman were sponsors), married Rebecca Elliott who was born about 1762, died January 1, 1834. He died September 27, 1821, also reported as February 11, 1826 at New York City, which is most likely correct though DAR Pensioners Ledger 1818-1872 lists his death as June 11, 1826 and pension was stopped. Source Codes #10, #62 and #247 (The 1841 Pensioners List, New York State, Page 180; and New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, 1942 edition, pages 191 and 192).

(Notes: 1. According to Source #247 (1790 Census, pages 197 and 198), in addition to Philip and his children, there were 3 other Vermilya men living in the town of Courtlandt, New York, in 1790. None have been positively identified; but, most likely, they were closely related. They were: Isaac, John and Joseph. 2: According to Source #247 (New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, 1942 edition, pages 137, 139, 191, 192 and 193), there were 14 family members in Courtlandtown, New York, from 1781 through 1801. They were either shown as living or being baptized there. They are most likely all related. In addition to Philip and his children, there were: Aalje Vermillier, who was living there in 1781; Aeltie Vermillier, who was living there in 1783; Polly Vermilie, who was baptized there in 1795; and Mehitabel Vermilye who lived there in 1801.)

Per Source Codes #28, #29 File S-42,578: Enlisted Courtland Manor, Westchester County, New York in March 1782 and served for nine months as a Private under Capt. Thomas Hunt's Company, Col. Weisenfels, New York Regt. Pension allowed on application executed July 9, 1819 when he was a resident of New York City and aged 61 years. Then, in 1821, family consisted of a wife and twelve children - Nathaniel, Betsey, age 17, Jane, age 15, Silvester, age 14 - are the only names that are mentioned. His pension, though approved in 1819 nothing happens until September 27, 1821 when his application surfaced accompanied by a handwritten note which said that the papers were misfiled at the clerk's office. On this application Philip's assets are listed: one loom, $10.00; two chests, $2.00; one table, $1.50; six chairs, $2.00; three iron pots and a tea kettle, $3.00; six pewter tea spoons, 12 cents; six tablespoons, 50 cents; plates and dishes $1.00; three jugs, 50 cents, andiron, shovel and tongs, $1.00; knives and forks, $1.25. Total: $22.37. In the petition he says that he is a rug (?) weaver and is unable to work. His signature is very shaky. In 1823 his monthly pension payments commenced. The "Pension Certificate", beginning on March 1, 1823, gives Philip monthly payments of $8.00. On September 4, 1823, he was paid $49.00 in back payments, he was 65 years old at this time.

Longworth's New York Directory lists him in 1817-1824 as a carpet weaver. He is listed in 1826 with no occupation, in 1827 Rebecca is listed as widow of Philip. They lived at 51 Orchard St.

Peter Vermilyea<sup>4</sup>, (Peter<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born July 31, 1760 in New York (probably Westchester County), baptized September 13, 1760 at the Dutch Reformed Church, (First Tarrytown Church) Tarrytown, New York, married November 30, 1781 at the Dutch Reformed Church, Hopewell, Dutchess, New York Mary Jewell who was born _____, died _____. He died _____. Guardianship petition file for his son John Walton in 1815, indicates he was deceased by this date. Source Codes: #10, #62, #76, #81, #83, #138 and New York Marriages, 1686-1980, database, FamilySearch. (Source #76 states that Peter and Mary were wed in 1793, however Church records show the 1781 date).

Shown at Ancestry trees on an undocumented page from a Jewel Family History: Maria Jewel, baptized May 3, 1757, married in 1781 Peter Vermilyea. She is the daughter of Abraham and Sara (Boeckhout) Jewel probably of Hopewell, Dutchess County, New York. (This information has not been added here as there are a number of disputes concerning this information). Other Jewels listed that connect to our family ---- George Jewell, born about 1748 at Hopewell, Dutchess County, New York, married about January 23, 1770 Lousia/Letitia Montfort widow of Gideon Townsend. George Jewell is listed as the son of John (Jan) Jewell and Engeltje Jurckse. They probably lived at New Hackensack. This same record shows only one Richard Jewell (see below, he lists Peter Vermilyea, his nephew (See #155) and family in his will, and Peter and Margaret name one of their children Richard Jewell), he is listed only as being baptized in 1746, no further information, son of Isaac Jewell and Rebecca Soms. Abraham, John and Isaac are brothers.

In a section about the Vermilyea Family (Solomon Vermilyea) published in the Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, R.A. Flint, Islington, Ontario, Canada 1971, it is recorded that Solomon came with his parents from the Catskill Mountains in New York State to Beach Ridge, near Montreal, Quebec, Canada about 1800.

Source Code #10: Peter Vermilyea son of Peter and Mary (Pinkney) Vermilyea married Margaret Schenck and are the parents of the children listed below... All of these children have been documented in Canada and a Peter Vermilyea wife Margaret (confirmed to be Schenck) with different children have been documented and confirmed living and dying in Sullivan County, New York. Information from the will of Richard Jewell in Dutchess County Genealogical Society, Vol. 12, #3: Will Book - F - Fishkill, Dutchess County, New York Jewell, Richard, Fishkill, Farmer, Date of Will: November 22, 1822, Date of Probate: February 5, 1823, Page 408-410 lists his nephew as Peter Vermilyea, his children (Richard Vermillia, son of Peter; Isaac Sebring Vermilia, son of Peter, Sarah Vermilia, daughter of Peter, Margaret Vermilia, wife of Peter. Richard Jewell is the same age and is buried with George and Latisia Jewell the parents of the wives of John and Isaac Vermilyea. There is no information to confirm if Mary Jewell wife of this Peter Vermilyea is connected to that Jewell family, however there is evidence that she would be a cousin to George and Richard Jewell.

William Vermilyea son of Peter and Mary (Jewell) Vermilyea, was born in 1784, probably at Saint John, New Brunswick. I say probably at Saint John because I believe (I am not 100% certain) that his father Peter is the Peter Vermilyea, Loyalist, who enlisted 1782 as a soldier in Colonel Beverly Robinson's Loyal American Regiment, and went to Saint John in 1783. If Peter is that man, then he obviously returned to the States (as many Loyalists did), since in 1790, as Peter Vermilyea Jr., he was recorded at Washington (present-day Stanford), Dutchess County, New York, with a family of one male over 16 (Peter Jr. himself), two males under 16 (sons William and Peter), and three females (wife Mary, and daughters Sarah and Ann). In 1795, Peter left Dutchess County with his father Peter Sr. and other family members to settle at present-day Gayhead, Greene County, but by October 2, 1797, he was living at Christie's Seignury, Quebec, on the east side of the Richelieu River, south of Montreal. On that date, he signed an Oath of Allegiance to the British government, and stated that his family then included one adult male (Peter himself), one adult female (wife Mary), and four sons and three daughters, all under 14 years of age. (Since daughter Sarah was born 1786, daughter Ann 1788, and son Peter 1790, this definitively establishes William's birth year as 1784, as otherwise he would have been 14 or over.) Some time later, and definitely by 1808, Peter Vermilyea brought his family to Loughborough, Frontenac County, Ontario, where he purchased land from Michael Sloom, adjoining Sloom's son-in-law Peter Ruttan Jr. Source Code #725.

I obtained a document which states that, as of April 24, 1816, Peter Vermilyea, along with his sons William, Peter Jr., and Solomon, had been given Crown grants of land at Ameliasburgh, Prince Edward County. Assuming that William settled on his land by that date, this means that he would have been gone from Loughborough by April 24, 1816, and that the "1819" Loughborough census (which includes him) must have been taken somewhat earlier, probably early 1816. Therefore, the fact that this census shows William and Rachel with only four children doesn't mean that they didn't have a fifth child in early 1818, after they were at Ameliasburgh. From a Letter of Guardianship recorded in the Surrogate Court, Utica, New York, dated November 13, 1815: Vermilyea 18 years on the fifth Nov. He married second February or March 1833 Roxie Meacham who was born about 1801, died February 25, 1852 at Clyde, Wayne County, New York. Her location of burial is unknown. He died December 25, 1851 at Clyde, Wayne County, New York. He is buried in the White School House Cemetery, Galen, Wayne County, New York. There are two Revolutionary War soldiers buried in this cemetery, one without marker, one with a small monument, but there is nothing readable on it. William Vermilyea who died in 1851 is listed in the records of this cemetery, but as of August 2012 no map has been located, so graves, though numbered are impossible to identify. From Military History of Wayne County at Ancestry.com: Reported by Sylvester H. Clark of Clyde: William Ver Millier, a Revolutionary War Soldier, who died in Gaylen April, 1851 and was buried in the "White School House Cemetery" two miles north of Clyde. In the corrections section of this publication it is noted that Ver Millier should be Vermilyea.

Per Source Code #28, 29, file #S14, 764 (There are 51 images (pages) in this file, including the names and birthdates of his youngest children). On September 18, 1832, a resident of Scipio, Cayuga County, New York and age 66, he stated that he entered the service from Stephentown, Westchester County, New York and fought in the Skirmish at White Plains and then was discharged at Pines Bridge after two years and six months of service. He died at Clyde, Wayne County, New York December of 1851. His widow, Roxie Meacham died also at Clyde in January of 1852. Children mentioned are William, Washington, Caroline, and Jefferson.

Source Code #44: It is believed that the Revolutionary War Veteran whose records are in the National Archives name William Vermilyea, born February 14, 1762 at Cortland, Westchester County, New York is my Great-great-great grandfather. His records indicate he served in the light dragoons commanded by Captain John Pickney. In 1832 he applied for his pension. In these same records a person gives evidence that William had two brothers that served in the same group with him. Riker lists brothers to William as Philip, Peter, John and Abraham. He enlisted in the military at a very young age and served for about 2.5 years. He was wounded twice. Once with a saber and was shot under the arm. Since Jacob was born in 1804 and William was discharged in 1782, it would appear that he got married after the Revolutionary War. It is a mystery as to what happens to his first wife, but after applying for and receiving his pension in 1832 he marries Roxie Meacham in 1833. He is apparently in his 70's and she is a bit younger than William's son Jacob. One of those giving evidence on the pension request for his dependent children after William's death mentions the large attention that the difference in the ages made when the two were married. William and Roxie went on to have and raise five children. Notwithstanding the huge difference in their ages, they died almost exactly two months apart.

On January 8, 1857 William VanWarter a (Counselor of the Court at Syracuse, New York), guardian of Washington, William and Caroline Vermilyea filled under the Land Bounty Act stating that the son Jackson Vermilyea was also under 20 years of age on March 3, 1855 at the time the Land Bounty Act was passed and had made no previous claim. William VanWarter was appointed as Guardian April 28, 1856. It is not clear what the outcome was. In 1856 Jacob Wright filed a deposition to support their claim and stated they were all living at Clyde, New York, but no record can be found of them there at that time. Caroline Vermilyea is not located in census records after 1850, last known to be living as of January 8, 1857. These files do not indicate who these children are living with.

Fatal Railroad Accident --- One man Killed and Two Badly Injured --- The freight train going west this morning came into collision with a work train near Savannah. The work train was backing up at the time of the collision, and the tender was thrown upon the locomotive, killing one man instantly and injuring two others so that they are not expected to survive. The name of the deceased was Hartwell Starke, formerly of Baldwinsville, where he has relatives residing. He was Engineer on the work train. David Burnham the Conductor, and Washington Vermilyea the fireman on the work train, were so badly injured that their lives were despaired of.

The passenger train left here this forenoon was detained for some time on account of the obstruction of the wreck on the track.

Later --- Dispatches by the R. R. Telegraph report that Mr. Starke, the Engineer, is not dead, but both legs are badly broken. The report of his death arose from the fact of his being buried under the rubbish of the wreck and being missing for a considerable time. The fireman, Mr. Vermilyea, is dead, however, and Mr. Burnham, the Conductor, is injured about the head. Hopes are now entertained of the recovery of both of the injured men.

John Vermilyea<sup>4</sup>, (Peter<sup>3</sup>, Isaac<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1764, married first Jane _____, he married second (third?) about 1820 in Courtland County, New York Mrs. Olive Crouch a widow, married third (fourth) March 3, 1840 at Summer Hill, Cayuga County, New York Rachel Rosa (widow of Abraham Rose) who was born about 1801 at _____, died _____. He died March 19, 1848 at Summer Hill, New York. Rachel apparently left Cortland County, New York and went to Rock County, Wisconsin between 1853 and 1855. She cannot be located on Census records in 1850 or later.

This John Vermilyea does not appear in the 1790 census, which normally means that he was not yet married in 1790. However, in 1800 he was living at "Bristol" (the name was later changed to Broome), Schoharie County, and the listing shows him with two males age 10-16 in the household. I don't believe that these were his sons, at least not by the wife Jane, his wife from 1796-1818; I think that they were either hired hands, or possibly step-sons, sons of his wife by an earlier marriage. But I'm not 100% certain. This John Vermilyea left Broome by 1804, and went to Delhi, Delaware County, before going to Homer (present-day Cortlandville), Cortland County, New York, by 1810. He lived in the Town of Broome, Schoharie County, from 1797-1803. This was the place known briefly as "Bristol," its name in 1800, but in fact, John Vermilyea lived in that part of Broome which is today Conesville, Schoharie County, on Dice's Patent. Beers "History of Greene County" by Annette Campbell refers to the husband of Alche Vermilyea as Peter S. Evory.

According to the 1800 Federal Census, Obadiah Evory (rendered in the Census as "Obediah Avery") was then residing at Bristol (now known as the Town of Broome). However, according to Martha Foland of the Stone Fort Museum (operated by the Schoharie County Historical Society) in Schoharie, New York, the southernmost part of Broome was transferred to the jurisdiction of Durham in Greene County, sometime during the first few years of the 19th Century. Therefore, Obadiah & Alche Evory had resided on the same Durham/Broome area farm from at least the year 1800, when their son John is recorded as having been born at Durham. After the Revolutionary War, in the late 1780's, veterans were given land grants rather than pensions, since the American government had no money at that time. Many New Yorkers moved north to Greene, Delaware and Schoharie Counties in the late 1780's and the 1790's. Source Code #633.

Santje/Susannah Vermilye<sup>4</sup>, (John/Johannes/Honnes)<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 17_, married in 1764 at Quaker Hill, Dutchess County, New York Timothy Hunt who was born September 16, 1744 in Dutchess County, New York, died September 16, 1824 at Florida, Montgomery County, New York. She died in 1834. She could be buried at Unadilla Forks, New York. Source Codes #149, #725 and following records.

Timothy Hunt, who was a soldier in the war of the Revolution under General Abercrombie in an attack on Fort Ticonderoga, and who finally located in Tryon county (now Florida, Montgomery county), New York, where he died. During the Revolutionary period Timothy Hunt and his family were among the sufferers by the Tories and Indians under the leadership of William Butler and Joseph Brant, a Mohawk sachem. On the morning of November 12, 1778, after the Indians had accomplished the destruction of Cherry Valley and the surrounding country, they finally reached the settlement of Chucktenunde Creek in the town of Florida. Mr. Hunt's buildings were burned and most of his stock was killed, the remainder escaping to the forest, while himself and family were saved by concealing themselves in a neighboring ravine, closely filled with elders, willows, and thick underbrush. His wife, Susanna Vermilia, was of French descent, and of their ten children -- five sons and five daughters -- Isaac, who was born in Florida, Montgomery county, married Polly Kinney, of the same place. Rev. Robert Hunt, 2d, son of this Isaac and grandfather of Dr. James G., was born in that town November 25, 1792, being one of twelve children. He married Margaret Johnson of Columbia, Herkimer county, New York, and began preaching in the Free

Will Baptist denomination as soon as he reached manhood, first in Warren, Herkimer county, and afterward in Columbia, Schuyler Lake, Whitmantown and Southville. In 1852 he removed to Troy, O., and in 1853 to China, Wyoming county, New York, where he remained twelve years. His health failed and he subsequently made his home in Hudson, Mich. In 1871 he came to the home of his son, Dr. Isaac J. Hunt, of Utica, where he died December 7, 1872. Rev. Robert Hunt had ten children, five of whom were sons, and all of them became physicians. One of these, Dr. Isaac J. Hunt, father of Dr. James G., was born in Warren, Herkimer county, New York, March 27, 1820, and married Mary, daughter of John Ingersoll, a farmer and manufacturer of Ilion, Herkimer county, New York. He was graduated from the Castleton (Vt.) Medical College, became a successful physician, and practiced his profession for nearly thirty years in the city of Utica, where he died January 25, 1875. He had two sons: Dr. James G., the subject of this sketch, and Loton S., who was born in Utica in 1852, read law and was admitted to the bar, and was appointed by President Harrison United States consul to Guelph, Canada, whence he was subsequently transferred to Palmerston, Ontario, Canada, where he still resides and officiates in that capacity.

About eighty years ago Elias Burdick lived on the lower part, which was bought by Jonas Wyman in 1831. She was most likely Mary, born about 1753, daughter of Solomon and Phebe Hustis, who are known to have had a child of that name born on that date. This would make John's wife a sister of Solomon Jr. (1745) and Phebe (1755) Hustis, who married his sister and brother. Following their marriage, John and Molly Vermilyea joined Solomon Hustis Jr. and Sarah at what is now Carmel, Putnam County. During the war, Solomon Hustis Jr. and John Vermilyea were both active Loyalists, and left the area. John Vermilyea was captured and nearly hanged at Poughkeepsie in 1781, but then exchanged for a rebel prisoner. He returned to Lower Yonkers, where in 1786 he was named executor of his grandfather Vermilyea's estate. He was recorded at Yonkers in 1790, but by 1800 he was living in New York City, where he died in 1829. Source Code #10, #40, #62 and #725.

William Vermilya<sup>4</sup>, (Abraham<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born about 1752 at Yonkers, New York, married in 1773 at Lower Yonkers, New York Phebe, daughter of Solomon and Phebe Hustis who was born at Phillips Manor (Yonkers), New York about 1755. His actual death date is unknown, but was doubtless at least a few weeks earlier than his inventory date which was April 12, 1803. He died at Roxbury, New York. She died in Delaware County May __, 1839. They are buried on the Roxbury farm (location of this burial has not been documented). Various publications state that William and Phebe lived in Frederick, New York, in the 1790's; then, moved to Columbus, Otsego County, New York, at the same time as Mary (his cousin, See #78) and Job Vail. Later they were in Putnam County, New York; then, Roxbury, New York; and, finally at Halcottsville, New York. Source Codes #6, #7, #10, #19, #40, #62, #64, #101, #141, #149 (Tree #3475), #156 and #725.

Following their marriage, William and Phebe joined John Vermilyea and Solomon Hustis at the Southern Precinct, Dutchess County, which later became Fredericksburgh Precinct, then the Town of Frederick, the name finally changed to Kent. These families lived in the part of Kent which was later set off as the Town of Carmel. In 1812, Putnam County, including Carmel, was set off from Dutchess. It is clear that William Vermilyea at least, and most likely Solomon Hustis and John Vermilyea as well, lived in the southern part of Carmel, very close to the line separating Carmel from Somers in Westchester County.

William Vermilyea lived from about 1774 to at least 1796 in present-day Carmel, Putnam County, nowhere else. (Statements to the effect that during this period he was at Harlem, or Yonkers, or Delaware County, etc., are false, based on guesswork or old wives' tales.) In 1790, he was recorded at Frederick with a household of one male 16 + (William himself), six males under 16 (sons Jesse, Edward, William, Solomon, Abraham, John), and three females (wife Phebe and two daughters). He disappears from Carmel Town records after 1796, when he probably settled at Roxbury, Delaware County. (He is recorded on a tax list for Roxbury dated September 1799.) His household in 1800 was 22101-00001; this accounts for his five youngest sons (Solomon, Abraham, John, Samuel, Jonathan), and indicates that any daughters he had were either deceased or married by 1800. (The eldest sons Jesse and Edward were already married, while son William was apparently living with the Whitneys, his wife's family.) William Vermilyea was living in June of 1802, but deceased by April 12, 1803, when the inventory of his estate was presented in court.

Source Code: #11: William Vermilya, was a Hollander, who settled in Putman County, where he reared a family of four children-- William, Jesse, John, and Samuel.

File Box A, County Clerk's office, Delhi, New York State – *administration papers* of William who died April 12, 1803 signed by Edward and Phebe Vermilya. This is an inventory of goods, chattels and credits. His belongings, mostly farm animals, equipment, flat irons, spinning wheel and household items. He held several notes, two from Jesse Vermilya. The only other family mentioned is Edward Vermilya and Phebe Vermilya, their relationship is not noted. She did not sign her name, but made her mark.

Source Code #40: If younger than the accepted brother John, who says he was born in 1755, and younger than his sister Sarah, he was born about 1759, and hence was only about eighteen years of age at the time of his marriage to Phebe Hustis, as Edward their eldest child was born in Sept., 1777. He died in Delaware County, New York in the early part of 1803, as letters of administration were granted his widow and their son Edward, April 12th of that year. She died in the same county in May, 1839, as stated in a letter, in June, 1842 from her son Samuel to our uncle John C. Vermilya. The time of their removal to Delaware county is not known, but it was probably prior to the date of his father's will in 1782, which might account for his not being one of his executors instead of his younger brother Abraham. (Note: the "accepted" brother John, supposedly born in 1755 (the year was actually 1754), was not William's brother; he was his first cousin, son of Honnes and Jemima (Corsa) Vermilyea).

Source Code #42: William and Phoebe Husted Vermilye married at Roxbury, New York. Lived during the Revolutionary War at Harlem, New York; from there they moved to Peekskill Landing, settled near Round Pond or Hyot's Plains; from there they moved north into Delaware County, took up a farm in the town of Roxbury. After a few years he died from the effects of a broken leg. (Note: They did not marry at Roxbury, New York).

DAR file #337661 states he served as a private for the Colonial Army during the Revolutionary War.

Source Code #106: Much research was done by letters to different War Department offices etc. concerning the military or pension records of this William Vermilya. The records show that he served in the Revolutionary War, rank not shown, in Captain Hazekiah Mead's and Captain Scribaner's Company, Colonel Ludington's Regiment, New York Militia. Neither the date of his entry into service or separation there from is shown. No file was found relating to claim based upon the Revolutionary War service of this William Vermilya.

William was born in the latter half of 1752; a muster roll of Captain Comfort Ludington's Company of Minute Men (Fredericksburgh Precinct, Dutchess County), dated August 5, 1776, states that William "Vermilliah" enlisted August 2, 1776, age 23. He was born in Westchester, a weaver, 5'5" tall with a "fresh" complexion, black hair and eyes. Because of his 1773 marriage, it appears he was born in the second half of 1752, and was thus age 23 on August 2, 1776, 20 at his wedding.

204. Elizabeth, born could be a daughter that was born 1777/1778 (if this is correct she is out of birth order), married Amos Sniffen. Can find no record of Amos Sniffen on census records for 1840 or 1850 in New York State. There is an Amos Sniffen listed in Westchester County in 1800 and 1810, also Amos Sniffen is listed in the Revolutionary War Service Records 1775-1783. There is not sufficient information in these files to make a connection to Elizabeth Vermilya.

I don't know if the family members who told Mr. Benton about Elizabeth Vermilyea marrying Amos Sniffin/Kniffin had all the details right. Maybe her name wasn't Elizabeth. Maybe his wasn't Amos, or perhaps even Sniffin. But, assuming there was a daughter who married Amos Sniffin, and that the couple was in the United States in 1800 (remember, they could have gone to Ontario, as huge numbers of people did in the late 1790s), there were three men named Amos Sniffin/Kniffin in the country at that time, all in New York State. The man in Southeast, Dutchess, and the man in New York City can definitely be eliminated, as they are clearly too old, but the Amos Sniffin at Pound Ridge, Westchester County in 1800 is a perfect candidate to be the husband of Elizabeth Vermilyea. His 1800 listing is 00100-20100, which looks like a man born about 1775, who married about 1796, and had daughters in 1797 and 1799; his wife, if the standard two years younger than her husband, would be born about 1777, which fits Elizabeth Vermilyea perfectly. This Amos Sniffin, who was at Pound Ridge by 1799, was still there in 1803; by 1810, he was at Bedford, Westchester County (which adjoins Pound Ridge), with a household of 20010-21010. He is listed directly next door to Reuben Sniffin, who by all appearances is his father. I do not find this Amos Sniffin anywhere in 1820, which means he either died, or perhaps, went to Ontario, Canada. If his apparent father Reuben Sniffin died in Westchester County, he may have left an estate record which would tell us what became of his son Amos. Source Code #725. According to a Family Tree at Ancestry this Reuben from Rye, Westchester County, died at Cardiff, Greene County, (Cardiff is in Onondaga County) New York March 24, 1838. Children not listed. Wife is Susanna Wilson. Reuben was born in 1740. Another tree has him with different parents, and dying at Cardiff in Onondaga County. Two children listed but not with the name Amos. Reuben's wife Deborah Brundage.

No further records found for Reuben or Amos.

There are records that indicate he was born February 6, 1786, she was born February 17, 1789. She is listed as Phebe Molyneaux - this can't be verified. There is a John Vermilya enumerated with Avery Vermilya in 1850 at Owego, Tioga County, New York. John is listed age 62, born New York no occupation. It could be that Phebe, Charity (wife of John's brother Abram and Susan (wife of John's brother Solomon) are sisters. Their parents could be Levi and Phebe (Robinson) Mullinex living at Roxbury, New York in 1810 or John and Mercy Mullinex -- there are several John Mullinex or similar spellings listed on the 1810 Federal Census at Roxbury, New York. All are living close to the Vermilya brothers, next door in the case of John Vermilya. It must be noted that there are numerous spelling of this surname, and at this time no proof can be found as to the parentage of any of these ladies.

207. Child, born about 1790. This could be Mehitabel, or another child who died young, but not a daughter who lived to marry, as the 1800 census shows no females in William Vermilyea's household, and a 9-10 year old girl would almost certainly be living with her parents.

VAIL

Maretje/Mary Vermilye<sup>4</sup>, (Frederick<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born about 1765, married in 1783 Job, son of Caleb and Hannah (Horton) Vail) who was born August 29, 1757 near Kingsbridge, New York, died March 17, 1825 at his home at New Berlin, Chenango County, New York. She died April 10, 1829. They are buried Scribner Cemetery, New Berlin, New York. Source Codes #64, #362 and #634.

Job Vail's sister married Jesse Vermilya (See #200 in the Fifth Generation). The surname is correctly spelled Vail and was incorrectly spelled on the 1790 Federal Census.

Job Vail was described as a "miller of Westchester." He was a witness, along with his wife's cousin, Edward Vermilye, to the will of Solomon Hustis of Phillips Manor (Yonkers) on July 6, 1782. Job does not appear in the 1790 Census as the head of a family; therefore, either someone failed to count him or he left his family (wife and three babies) with his father at Frederickstown while he went west looking for a new home; which would account for the household of twelve under Caleb in the 1790 Census. There is evidence that he eventually found a place about three or four years later which was located about three miles south of New Berlin. Between 1790 and about 1794, he had stopped at Columbus long enough to build a home, gristmill and a saw mill. Later, he built another gristmill and sawmill along the Unadilla River next to his farm. Job's first house was a log cabin, but when he was able to saw lumber, he built a frame home which with some enlarging was used by his descendants for many years later. In one write-up, Job is said to have been "tainted" with Toryism, but another says he was a miller for Washington's Army at Newburgh. He did not serve in the army because he, like his father, was a Quaker and millers and Quakers were exempt from serving. On March 23, 1820, he made his will leaving his realty jointly to his sons Frederick and Isaac; but, on August 20, 1821 he made a codicil dividing it; leaving the house, barn, 105 acres and 1/2 of the mill to Frederick, 1/2 of the mill and other lands to Isaac, $5 to Polly Adams and $100 to each of the other girls. His will was probated on 14 June 1825. The will also provided for his mother Hannah. Source Code #64.

DAVENPORT

Jane Vermilye<sup>4</sup>, (Gerardus<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Johannes<sup>1</sup>) born in 1779, married October 24, 1797 at the Dutch Reformed Church, Fishkill, Dutchess County, New York Lewis Davenport who was born in 1772, died in 1850, buried in Neelytown Cemetery, Neelytown, Orange County, New York. There is no one reported buried in this cemetery with the name of Davenport or Vermilye that could be the wife of Lewis Davenport. Nathaniel Smith Davenport is buried here as well as his wife, however there are no relationships given at Source Code #634. Jane Vermilye Davenport is reported to have died by 1810, no record can be found of her death or burial. There are no females in her age bracket listed on the 1810 Federal Census, based on this, it is thought she was deceased by this date. Lewis Davenport, Jr. was born in 1816 and at this time there is no record found listing his mother's name. Lewis Davenport, Jr. is the one that married June 10, 1837 at the Presbyterian Church, Hamptonburgh Twp, Orange, New York Catherine Brown. Source: New York Marriages, 1686-1980, database, FamilySearch.

Source: United States War of 1812 Index to Service Records, 1812-1815 Lewis Davenport, served Battalion 153 (Fancher's) New York Military as a private. No further information.

There is a Lewis Davenport listed on the 1800 Federal Census at Pauling, Dutchess County, New York, one male age 10 to 26, one over 26. One female under age 10, one female over 26. In 1810 there is a Lewis Davenport listed at Fishkill, Dutchess County, with two males under age 10, one male under age 26, one male under 45; one female under age 16. On same page is Isaac G. Vermilye and several other family members. None of these Davenports appear on the 1820 Federal Census, no Davenports in Dutchess County. In 1830 Federal Census Christopher Davenport is the only one in Dutchess County.

Children: Nathaniel born in 1801 is most likely the son of Jane Vermilye, however, since her date of death can't be determined, it is unclear if there are other children. If the female listed under 10 on the 1800 Federal Census and under 16 in 1810 is indeed the daughter of Jane and Lewis, no further record can be found for her as well as the son listed age under 10 in 1810.

- II. Lewis, Jr., born in 1816, married Catherine E. Brown who was born in 1816. Lewis cannot be confirmed as the son of Jane Vermilye, he is included here to prove that he is the Lewis Davenport that married Catherine E. Brown and not Lewis Davenport, Sr. All of their children show their mother's name as Catherine Brown.

Elizabeth Davenport, daughter of Lewis Davenport and Catherine Brown married May 16, 1886 at Manhattan, New York John R. Lefferts. Elizabeth Davenport was born in 1851 at Washingtonville, Orange County, New York. Father: Lewis Davenport. Mother: Catherine Brown. She appears on the 1855 New York State Census at E.D. 1, Blooming Grove, Orange, New York, United States. Lewis Davenport and Catherine A. Davenport are listed age 39. Which means they were born in 1816. It appears there is some confusion on the family trees at Ancestry ---- Catherine Brown is not the wife of Lewis, Sr. Lewis, Jr. and Catherine's children: (1) W. S., born about 1840; (2) Franklin B., born about 1841; (3) Mary Frances, born about 1843 probably married John S. Davis and had a daughter Mary Frances, born 1865; (4) Lewis, born about 1846. Lewis Jr., son of Lewis Davenport and Catherine Brown married in 1872 at Manhattan, New York Emma J. Brower; (5) Elizabeth Ann, born about 1848; (6) Emily Jane, born about 1850.

1865 New York State Census District 01, Blooming Grove, Orange, New York, United States: Lewis Davenport, age 48, Catherine A. Brom, wife, age 49; Ann Eliza, age 17; Emma Jane, age 15; John S. Davis, son-in-law, age 24; Mary Frances Davis, granddaughter, age 0; W. S. Davenport, son, age 24; Franklin B. Davenport, son, age 23. This same family is listed on the 1850 Federal Census New York at Hamptonburgh, Orange, New York, United States. One more son listed James H., age 12, William L. is listed as age 11. Nathaniel is also listed at this same location in 1840 and 1850. It is this Lewis Davenport that appears on the 1840 Federal Census at Hamptonburgh, Orange, New York with two males under 5; one male age 20-30; one male 60-70. One female 20-30. I would expect the male aged 60-70 would be Lewis, Sr. There are no other females listed. He is living next door to Benjamin Brooks and there are a number of neighbors with the name Brown.

Children: (The list of children (including David, Richard and Mary, who have no adult histories), comes from a 19th century Latter Day Saints baptism; I assume that whoever supplied the information relied on family sources for the names, but the birth dates given for Werter and Smith are both 4-5 years too late, which makes me think that the dates given for David (1802) and Richard are off as well. - V. Nathaniel, born about 1791/92 in Saratoga County, New York. Living in 1830.

The War of 1812 was watched with intense interest in this section, and considerable apprehension was felt that the old Burgoyne campaign of thirty-five years before might be repeated. The town furnished its quota for the army. For the names of the men who went into the service we are dependent mostly upon the memory of citizens. The following are all we have obtained. Wm. Clements, George Strover, Henry D. Chapman, Nathaniel Somes, Elisha Phillips, substitute for James Serviss, Justus Fuller, Martin Rogers, and Isaac Ackerman. The latter was wounded at Sacket's Harbor in both shoulders by one shot. Also, we add, on the authority of Werter Somas (to whom we are indebted for many other items of early times), the names of Archibald Fuller, Wm. Ward, Samuel Eldredge, Nicholas Viele, John Rogers, James Rogers, Captain James Nott. Source: HISTORY OF SARATOGA COUNTY, NEW YORK, by NATHANIEL BARTLETT SYLVESTER, 1878.

I searched Surrogate Court files of all Snyders and made notations. Henry Snyder who married Hannah Vermilya had children John, Philip. David, Adam, Betsy Weam and Julia Skeran as survivors. (These are incorrect spelling Weam is Weaver and Skeran is Shear). Source Code #712.

I examined the will of Henry Snyder held in a book separate from his estate file. You were correct Henry was a son. However, Julia was a widow of George Shear and had a son Henry M. Reynolds which I presume was from a 1st marriage. Betsey was married to John I. Weam or Weauen (misspelling this is Weaver) or some combination. Source Code #712.

The Henry Snyder living at Rensselaerville, Albany County in 1800 is living next door to a Henry Lawson, a name that also connects to the Vermilyea family. There are 19 pages of this census. Henry Snyder is on page 2, Andrew P. Lawson (whose daughter married a Vermilyea) is on page 4 and David Vermilyea #74 -- the elder (age 45+) is on page 6. David is known to have two daughters Hannah and Elizabeth, there are two young females listed on the 1800 census. It may be that David had a sister Hannah. There are no females listed in the family of his parents, however this information would be from the 1750 time frame, before Census Records began. All the sons (4) are accounted for.

Henry Snyder appears on the 1853-1856 Index to Testators, Albany County, Westerlo. NY-1-15-117. 1820 Federal Census living at Westerlo, also on the same census is Gilbert, David and Joseph Vermilya, census in alphabetical listing, so can't tell if they lived close.
